LINDBERGH OUTRAGE OFFSHOOT

GASTON MEANS ARRESTED.

FORMERLY IN U.S. SECRET SERVICE

Washington, May 5.
A sensational offshoot of the Lindbergh kidnapping case, Gaston B. Means, described as a friend of the late President Harding, was arrested in Washington to-day on a charge of obtaining money by false pretences.

Means is accused of securing the payment of $500,000 from the wife of the publisher of the Washington Post, a leading American newspaper, by representing that he was in a position to recover the Lindbergh baby.

EX-SECRET SERVICE MAN.

The accused was formerly in the American Secret Service, being very prominent in connection with the Teapot Dome Oil Scandal.

He has been in the limelight at intervals since 1917 when he was involved in a charge of murder made in connexion with the death of a wealthy woman whose estate he had in part managed.

During the investigation he also became involved in an investigation of an alleged German spy plot.

STARTLINGLY FRANK.

His testimony in regard to both these things was startlingly frank as it has been in every other case in which he has been involved.

Some time later he was accused in New York of being implicated in a rum running plot in which more than $1,000,000 worth of liquor was smuggled into the country. He frankly admitted his part in it, saying he had done it as an agent of the Department of Justice in order to get evidence on the smugglers. The Department issued a brief non-committal statement saying he was at that time an agent for the Department and that he rendered valuable assistance. About that time he ceased to be an agent of the Department.

TEAPOT DOME OIL SCANDAL

ALBERT FALL TO BE RELEASED

Washington, May 5.
Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, in the Harding Administration, who was convicted of accepting a bribe in the Teapot Dome oil lease scandal and sentenced to imprisonment for a year and a day, is being released from the New Mexico State Prison on Sunday.—Reuter.

EUROPEAN DAVIS CUP TIES

MONACO LEAD AT OSLO

London, May 5.
At Brussels to-day, Switzerland carried their Davis Cup victory over Belgium to five straight matches. Fisher beating Van Zuylen, 6-3, 6-1, 8-6, while Aeschlimann beat De Eekhout 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

At Budapest, Hungary beat Finland by five matches to nil, the final games resulting in a win for Gabrovitz (Hungary) over Blaudet by 6-1, 6-1, 6-1, and for De Kohring over Grotentolt by 6-0, 6-3, 6-4.

At Oslo, Monaco gained a two matches lead over Norway on the opening day's play of their Davis Cup contest.

Gallop (Monaco) beat Hagen (Norway), 6-3, 6-4, 6-8, 6-1. Landau (Monaco) beat Torkildsen (Norway), 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.—Reuter.

SOVIET TORTURE ALLEGATIONS

RUSSIANS SUBJECTED TO THIRD DEGREE

HARBIN PROTESTS

(SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH.")

Mukden, May 6.

THIRD DEGREE IN A CELLAR, WITH JAPANESE OFFICIALS DIRECTING OPERATIONS, ARE AMONG SERIOUS CHARGES OF THE TORTURING OF SOVIET NATIONALS UNDER THE JAPANESE-MANCHUKUO REGIME IN NORTH MANCHURIA, WHICH ARE BEING MADE IN SOVIET QUARTERS.

Relations between Japan and Russia are becoming increasingly strained following further charges of "provocative acts"—apart from the torture allegations.

SIBERIA MAIL RECORD

SEVENTEEN DAYS FROM LONDON

A new mail speed record between England and Hongkong via Siberia was established this morning, when the P. and O. liner s.s. Ranpura arrived in Hongkong with 118 bags of English mail, 17 days after despatch from London.

The previous fastest time for this delivery was made on April 1 of this year, when the Empress of Canada brought in a Siberian mail in 18 days. The new record is two to three days better than the average time taken for this route.

A Post Office official this morning knew of no special effort and attributed the remarkable service established by the arrival of the Ranpura to the fact that the mail caught all connexions en route.

This new speed record makes the Siberian mails at least a dozen days faster than the Suez route, and is only a few days behind the air mail inaugurated recently.

GOVERNMENT GRATITUDE!

WILL OF INVENTOR OF MILLS BOMB

(Reuter's Special Service).

London, May 5.
Sir William Mills, the inventor of the famous Mills bomb, who died in January last at the age of seventy-six, left an estate valued at £37,820.

It is revealed that only a little over £37,000 was granted to him by the Government for the invention of his bomb, of which 750,000,000 were made for the Allies during the war.

The Royal Observatory reports that the anticyclone over North China has increased in intensity. The depression is situated in the Sea of Japan to the S.W. of Hokkaido. Local forecast:—East winds, moderate; fine to cloudy.

The forthcoming wedding is announced of Mr. Marcelino Francisco de Paula Baptista, St. Joseph's Building, "C" Block, second floor, to Miss Anna Teresa Pereira, of the same building, "A" Block, ground floor.

In passing a hand-truck, a Sanitary Department lorry in Wing Lok Street, yesterday, knocked down one of the coolies, causing internal injuries from which the man died after admission to the Government Civil Hospital.

During recent weeks, more than a hundred Soviet citizens resident in Harbin have been arrested by agents of the Japanese-Manchukuo Government, and Soviet sources allege that they have been subjected to ill-treatment by White Guards, who are now employed by the Chinese police in Harbin, an action which itself is regarded as an act of hostility to Soviet Russia.

CONSULATE INVOLVED.

It is further alleged that most of the arrests were made by Japanese gendarmes, who have taken their "victims" to a cellar in the Japanese Consulate and subjected them to a third degree examination before delivering them to the Chinese Police Detective Department.

Many of those arrested have declared a hunger strike to register their protest against the "inhuman methods of examination."

"BARBARIC TORTURE."

It is stated, on reliable authority, that the Soviet Consul-General at Harbin has reported to Moscow on the "barbaric torture" to which Soviet nationals have been exposed in an endeavour to force them to admit to the perpetration of "invented crimes."—Reuter.

LEFTY GROVES SHOWS CLEVELAND HOW

Bill Terry Hits His Seventh Homer

New York, May 5.
The Athletics staged a runfest to-day against Cleveland Indians, whose recent sequence of success was brought to a disastrous termination. Lefty Groves fanned five and hit twice in the seventh inning, in which the Athletics scored seven runs.

Kamm, McNair and Fox hit home runs, the circuit clout of Fox being fifth of the season. Jolley scored a home run for the Reds at Boston.

In the National League, both leaders fopped. The Braves took the short end of a 9-6 score at Cincinnati, where Lombardi and Schumacher hit home runs.

Chicago lost a tight game before their own barrack-squad. The Cardinals failed to maintain their recent improved form when the Giants came along with their heavy hitters. Bill Terry again took the lead in home run row, scoring his seventh of the season, while Blades also battered the pill for a run round.

The results were:

| National League. |              |
|------------------|--------------|
| Cincinnati       | 9 Boston     |
| Chicago          | 1 Brooklyn   |
| St. Louis        | 6 New York   |
| American League. |              |
| Boston           | 3 St. Louis  |
| Philadelphia     | 15 Cleveland |

The Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, who was this morning sworn in as His Excellency the Minister of the Interior.

PATHETIC SCENE

SHANGHAI TRUCE SIGNATURES

(Our Own Correspondent).

Shanghai, May 6.

Finishing touches will be applied to the Shanghai peace agreement to-day when the Chinese and Japanese versions of the historic document will be signed.

Lieut.-General Shirakawa, who is rapidly recovering from the wounds he received in the bomb outrage, yesterday issued an order for the withdrawal of the Japanese troops into the specified areas, the retirement to commence almost at once and to be completed in four weeks.

PALE AND WAN.

Pathetic scenes were witnessed at the hospital yesterday when the peace delegates entered the room where Mr. Shigemitsu, the Japanese Minister, was lying preparatory to the operation for the removal of his leg.

Attended by his brother and three doctors, Mr. Shigemitsu was lying in bed, pale and wan, with sunken cheeks.

FRIENDSHIP WISH.

He greeted the three bearers of the text of the agreement, Messrs. Samuel Chang, Okasaki and Blackburn, and to Mr. Chang, whom he greeted very cordially, he expressed a desire that he would convey to the Chinese people his wish that the Chinese and Japanese might be friends.

The text of the agreement was handed to him and after an examination, he picked up a pen with his right hand, which was bandaged and bloodstained and affixed his signature to the document.

TREATY TOASTED.

Shortly after noon yesterday, after Mr. Shigemitsu and the foreign observers had appended their signature, a toast in celebration of the successful conclusion of the conference was joined in by all the delegates able to attend at the British Consulate.

LAST OF OTTAWA ADVISERS

SIR D. NEWTON, M.P., APPOINTED

London, May 6.
It was announced to-day in the House of Commons that Sir Douglas Newton, M.P. for Cambridge, has been appointed adviser on agricultural questions attached to the United Kingdom Delegation to the Ottawa Conference.

Sir Douglas Newton, who has represented Cambridge as a Conservative since 1922, was chairman of the Cambridge University Council in 1921-22. He acted as Assistant Secretary (upward) to the Minister in Charge of Reconstruction from 1917 to 1919, and in 1922-23 was Chairman of the National Agricultural Council.

MANCHURIA ANARCHY

REBELS IN REAR OF JAPANESE

HEAVY FIGHTING

Harbin, May 6.
Meeting with fierce resistance at several points, the powerful Japanese drive against the insurgents on the eastern section of the Chinese Eastern Railway continues.

They are proceeding up the Hu-Hai Railway, meeting with comparatively little resistance, while along the Sungari River, they have now occupied Saining and Fangcheng, after very heavy fighting.

SEVERE LOSSES.

Both at Saining and Fangcheng, the insurgents were in strength and resisted the attack until compelled to retire by the severity of their losses. It is estimated that the Chinese casualties in these two battles were two thousand. The Japanese losses, believed to be heavy, have not been officially announced.

Along the western section of the C. E. R., the Japanese have occupied Antachan, some eighty miles from Harbin and the defeated forces are retreating to the west.

Nevertheless, in spite of the Japanese successes, the operations of the insurgents shows little sign of lessening.

NEW MENACE.

A serious menace has now appeared in the arrival of a very strong force near Harbin. While the Japanese are advancing along the Chinese Eastern Railway, Chinese troops have suddenly sprung into activity between the advancing Japanese and Harbin.

Particularly large is one force which has carried out a series of violent attacks on the Chinese Eastern Railway about sixty miles from Harbin, well to the rear of the Japanese.

ANARCHY PREVAILS.

An armoured train has been sent to assist the Manchukuo garrisons in resisting these forces.

Along the whole of the Chinese Eastern Railway, eastern section, anarchy prevails. The railway is being constantly attacked and whole sections destroyed.—Reuter.

HIS EXCELLENCY DEPARTS

WARM SEND-OFF AT QUEEN'S PIER

A large crowd of Hongkong's most prominent residents assembled on Queen's Pier this morning to bid farewell to H. E. the Governor and Lady Peel who are proceeding to England on leave by the Empress of Japan.

Shortly after 10.30 a.m., cars began to arrive and a few minutes before 11 o'clock, a distinguished gathering was present.

His Excellency and Lady Peel arrived punctually. As they emerged from their car, the band from St. Louis' Industrial School played the National Anthem.

Sir William reviewed a contingent of girls from St. John's Ambulance Brigade. He then shook hands with his many friends on the wharf.

The farewells completed, the Governor's launch cast off and headed for the Empress of Japan. As she pulled slowly away from the wharf the band played "Auld Lang Syne". Handkerchiefs fluttered and hats were waved from the launch while the Governor and Lady Peel responded from the bow of the launch.

DON JUAN OF ROYAL NAVY

CRUISE IN INDIA WATERS.

(Reuter's Special Service).

Fontainebleau, May 6.
Don Juan, the third son of ex-King Alfonso of Spain, has finished his naval studies at Dartmouth College and has returned to his parents at Fontainebleau.

It is learned, however, that the young Prince will leave again shortly to join a British warship on a cruise to India in order to gain practical experience of the sea.

He will be absent with the Royal Navy for about two years.

IRELAND'S OATH

BREACH OF TREATY: BRITAIN STATES ATTITUDE

London, May 6.

Asked in the House of Commons to-day whether he would consider the advisability of submitting the dispute over the treaty with the Irish Free State to a specially constituted court of appeal or to the International Court, the Dominions Secretary, Mr. J. H. Thomas replied that Mr. De Valera had deliberately chosen to propose the abolition of the Parliamentary oath from the Irish Free State constitution by unilateral action.

Mr. Thomas added, in reply to a supplementary question: "The matter in dispute is a treaty agreement between two parties. It is customary, when there are differences of opinion, for one or the other to ask for a consultation to discuss them."

"Mr. De Valera, without consultation or intimation of any kind, proposes to break his side of the treaty."

"It is not for us as a Government, being the other party to the treaty, to do other than call attention to the fact that he has broken the treaty."—British Wireless.

BRITISH AIRMEN RELEASED

NONE THE WORSE FOR CAPTIVITY

London, May 5.
The Air Ministry to-day received information that Flying Officer Wills and leading Aircraftsman Evans, who recently made a forced landing and were taken prisoners by a tribe in Northern Kurdistan, have been released and have returned to their unit.

Both are reported to be well.—British Wireless.

RACKETEERS THREAT

DEMAND $50,000 FROM EDISON'S SON

(Reuter's Special Service).

Philadelphia, May 5.
"Give us fifty thousand dollars or we shall prevent you from marketing your invention," is the threat held over the head of William Edison, son of the world-famous inventor, who is seeking to follow in his father's footsteps. Mr. William Edison shares the fortune of $12,000,000 left by the late Thomas Edison with one of his brothers.

WORLD CRISIS. THE BORAH CURE

RESTORATION OF SILVER

Washington, May 5.

A three-fold programme for world economic recovery, namely, disarmament, the settlement of the reparations problems and the restoration of silver to the place it occupied prior to 1928 was outlined to a crowded Senate by Senator Borah to-day.

Senator Borah, who is the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, represents Idaho.

One of the American silver-producing States, has a larger popular following than any other Senator, his words carrying farther than anyone in Washington with the exception of the President.

NO LEADERSHIP.

He is a firm advocate of a reduction of war debts and reparations, and to-day he expressed the opinion that a return of property to the world was impossible unless his programme was carried out.

He concluded: "If the United States throw its influence behind the movement to restore silver, it would succeed."

"We have no leadership," was his parting shot.—Reuter.

THE MORATORIUM.

London, May 5.
The Chancellor of Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain stated in the House of Commons to-day that the next payment for interest on war debts to America would normally fall due on June 15th next, but has been postponed under the Hoover Moratorium.

The next payment thereafter falls due on December 15th. There would be, no doubt, an opportunity to discuss the Government's policy with regard to war debts and reparations before the last-named date.

Asked whether two payments would have to be made in December next, Mr. Chamberlain replied: "Only one."—British Wireless.

PREMIER'S EYE OPERATION

SUCCESSFULLY DONE YESTERDAY

London, May 5.
A bulletin issued this evening stated: "The operation on the Prime Minister's right eye was undertaken successfully at four o'clock this afternoon."

At the King's request, the result of the operation was telephoned to him at Buckingham Palace at the earliest moment.—British Wireless.

TARIFFS ENDORSED

TREASURY ORDER PASSED BY BIG MAJORITY.

London, May 5.
The House of Commons by a vote of 70 to-day agreed to Government resolution approving the tariff duties imposed under the Treasury Order on the recommendations of the May Committee.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

Secretary, American Bridge League.

The writer has long advocated the use of the One over One, and under the McKenney system of contract bidding it is employed as follows:

Supposing you held:
Spades—A K x x x
Hearts—x x x
Diamonds—A K x x
Clubs—x

You would open with one diamond, your four-card suit. We will assume that the opponents always pass. Your partner bids one heart. He is asking you to re-bid and shows at least one and one-half tricks. You can respond with two spades—a jump shift forcing bid now, demanding that partner keep the bidding open until game is arrived at. You have told partner that your hand holds four diamonds and five spades. If he re-bids his hearts he immediately advises you that he cannot support your five-card suit, and that he holds at least five hearts himself, therefore you can bid for game in hearts, even though you hold only three.

The above type of hand is rather simple to bid. The one that will cause the beginner the most confusion is the type where we will say you open with one heart. Partner bids one spade, making a forcing One over One bid. Now if you simply hold a four-card heart suit and only your two and one-half quick tricks, and not normal support in spades, you will reply to partner's One over One spade bid with one no trump, advising partner that your hand contains a four-card suit and is a minimum.

If you hold a five-card heart suit and still a minimum, you will reply with two hearts, advising partner of the fact that you hold at least a five-card suit as you re-bid your suit and still have only the minimum in quick tricks. Partner has received the whole picture of your hand and the contract is not above two. When you respond with one no trump, he may either pass, re-bid his suit, he can do any of these with an absolute picture of your hand.

The most important thing to bear in mind when employing the One over One convention is to not think just because partner has made a One over One that there is game in the hand. The bid is not made for that purpose. In reality it is asking you to give detailed information about your hand, and if you hold a minimum, be very frank and so inform partner.

Supporting partner's suit or rebidding your own suit after the One over One:

Supposing you make an original bid for one heart, partner bids one spade. You hold normal support in spades, which is four small, or

CORRESPONDENCE.

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—As an elector, I find the mass of correspondence, editorial comments, statements, etc., all rather complicated. What seems to me to be a matter of importance is whether primarily Mr. Mow Fung is to represent the Colony as a whole, or whether primarily he is only to represent Kowloon. I do not read Mr. Lo's letter as containing an attack on the K.R.A.; he points out an important paragraph in the K.R.A.'s letter and analyses two possible meanings of that statement. I see now that the K. R. A. has advanced a third meaning, namely, that it is merely to enable its candidate to get over an "inferiority complex" in regard to his lack of technical knowledge. On the fact of it I confess this meaning was not very clear.

As I say, it is important for the electors to know Mr. Mow Fung's exact position. In Mr. Mow Fung's letter, by way of reply to Mr. Lo, he states—"I wish, however, to reply to his charge that I am standing primarily in the interests of a section of the community only, and that the interests of the Colony as a whole will come second." He then proceeds, not to reply to that charge, but to build up the case that, by paying special attention to the affairs of Kowloon, he will be serving the interests of the Colony as a whole. All this argument is very unconvincing to me! In any case how does Mr. Mow Fung explain away this important sentence which comes at the beginning of the K. R. A.'s letter announcing that this body had nominated Mr. Mow Fung—"In deciding on this nomination your Committee had in view primarily the necessity of securing adequate representation of Kowloon's special requirements on all public bodies."

Now that it has been pointed out that Dr. Basto, who is doing such good work on the Sanitary Board, is already a member of the Committee of the K.R.A., how can the K. R. A. explain its alleged reason in deciding upon Mr. Mow Fung's nomination?

ELECT.

three to the ace, king or queen. You should raise partner the full extent of your hand immediately. You must remember that partner may hold only one and one-half tricks, although he has made a One over One bid. If you now bid two spades, you would say to partner, "Even though you hold only one and one-half tricks and a four-card spade suit, I have enough support in my hand to allow you to make two spades. If you have any more, bid them yourself."

If you open with one heart and partner bids one spade and you have a strong five-card heart suit and additional quick tricks, show them to partner by bidding three hearts. Remember that if you bid two hearts, you are showing him a minimum five-card suit with only two and one-half tricks.

The dime-a-dance girl

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Beautiful Ellen Bowles, employed at Harcourt's Department Store, works nights as a dance hall hostess. She lives with her mother, Molly Bowles, her elder sister, Myra, and her baby brother, Mike. Steven Barclay, of and owner of Barclay's, is in love with Ellen. Twice she refused to marry him because she loved handsome Larry Harrowgate, an artist she has met at the dance hall. She loves him despite the fact that his engagement to Elizabeth Bowles, a debutante, has been announced. Ellen agrees to pose for Larry. At his studio she sees a photograph of Elizabeth Bowles. He explains casually that Elizabeth is a friend.

Ellen decides to break with Larry, but he comes again to the dance hall and asks her to lunch with him and his mother the following day. For the first time she kisses her. Next day at the store she receives a note saying he will be unable to keep the date.

Heart-broken, Ellen reads in a newspaper society column that Elizabeth Bowles has returned from Europe.

CHAPTER XXV.

Ellen's heart burned with a sort of never ending fire. She was bitter, rebellious, tired and unhappy. Above all she was bewildered.

It was unthinkable that she should have been so close to happiness only to miss it in the end. Larry must have meant to tell her that his engagement was broken. Why else should he ask her to meet his mother? Nevertheless there was the cruel, cruel note. Why had he written it? What circumstance had caused him to change so suddenly? To the wretched girl only one answer suggested itself. The return of Elizabeth Bowles from Europe.

Ellen flung herself into work at the store; flung herself with wild abandon into her duties at Dreamland. She would forget Larry; she must. She tried to fill every moment so there would be no time to think, no time to remember that she had lost the man she had never owned. But there were times when she was shaken with envy and jealousy.

While these thoughts seethed and boiled in her mind the girl laughed and danced and chattered. How she talked these breathless August nights to men whose faces faded to nothingness even as they turned away! Tony, the gamelike little hostess who had become Ellen's best friend, was not deceived by this gaiety.

"There's lots of fish left in the sea," she ventured to say once.

"I don't know what you mean, Tony," Ellen had replied, lifting brilliant eyes.

"Never mind," said Tony and dropped the matter.

Someone else was unwilling to drop matters so easily. Steven Barclay had been watching the change in Ellen, had seen her growing pale and listless even as she burned with energy. Steven had suffered with her. Toward the middle of the second week he called Ellen into his office. He spoke directly.

"I thought you trusted me," he began.

"But I do, sir," Ellen protested uncomfortably.

"Then don't call me sir."

"It's just habit. I won't do it again, sir."

They both laughed. After that it was easier. All at once Ellen saw Steven Barclay again, saw him in all his kindness and gentleness for the first time in weeks. During that time she had had hurried engagements with him but always his image had been blurred by the image of the man who was absent.

"You're working yourself to death and I won't have it," Steven said sternly. "I'm too fond of you to see you deliberately drive yourself to a nervous collapse."

Ellen found his anxiety comforting, found it sweet to forget the fears and fevers which had consumed her and to be wrapped in this infinite gentleness. She roused abruptly.

"It won't be for long now," she said with a grateful smile. "Two weeks from tomorrow I'm giving up my job at Dreamland. I've slacked at the store, I know. I've been so tired but I'll do better soon."

"Give up both jobs tomorrow," Steven suggested suddenly. "Give them up and marry me. Let me take you to Switzerland where it's always cool and the whole world plays. Let me give you leisure. Let me take over the responsibilities that are weighing you to a shadow!"

Switzerland in midsummer, Molly and Mike cared for, Myra able to marry—oh, it was an alluring vision to the weary, heavy-eyed girl. She saw herself with the world for a playground, saw at her side a man who adored her, a man who could give her everything except the will-o'-wisp she had fancied she found in Larry Harrowgate's laughing eyes. "I can't do it," Ellen whispered.

For the first time Steven experienced the sharp shock of jealousy. He asked in deadly earnestness the question Larry Harrowgate not three weeks before had put so lightly.

"Ellen, is there someone else?"

"Not now," she muttered. The canny head came up. "There never was," she amended defiantly, wary eyes on Barclay's face lest he should read her shame and pain.

Steven dared not continue. He watched her as she murmured a goodbye and slipped away from his office. That was on Wednesday. Ellen pleaded off from her duties at Dreamland and went directly from the store to the Brooklyn apartment. Molly, stretched out on a couch in the cool blast of a tiny, noisy electric fan, greeted her languidly, close her eyes and was asleep again.

Ellen frock and pulled her mop of hair straight back from her forehead, rigorously taming the rebellious curls at the nape of her neck.

By that time Myra was home from the library. They were having a cold supper. She and Myra prepared it in the apartment because of its northern exposure. Myra chopped ice for the tea and made thin bread and butter sandwiches. Ellen sliced chilled tomatoes, cucumbers and onions and daintily rubbed the salad bowl with a button of garlic, speared on the end of a fork.

"It's nice to have you back again," Myra observed, smiling at her sister's cautious efforts to avoid being smeared with the garlic.

"Funny, I have the same sort of feeling," Ellen said absently. "We don't seem to have had any real talks for weeks. It's been too hot for anything."

"Well, it will be September soon."

"It's hard to believe that it will ever snow again and that we'll freeze running for the subway, isn't it?"

Ellen sighed at the thought of chrysanthemums and football games and days when hot chocolate would seem delicious. Incredible tonight that great fears would roar again, that snow would come pelting through the air, that violets would be worn on furs!

"Is everything all right now?" Myra asked lightly after a long absorbed silence.

Ellen felt a familiar stab of pain.

"It seems to be," she said carefully. "But I don't know—it may be the heat. I couldn't at the moment shed a tear if all New York fell to ruins and you and I were it." She poured olive oil and cider vinegar into the yellow mixing bowl and sprinkled paprika with a lavish hand. As she began the blending she remarked with studied carelessness:

"Miss Bowles is back from Europe."

"I saw it in the paper," Myra replied unwillingly. "But you don't care so much do you, honey?"

"Oh, no, I don't care." Ellen went at the salad dressing with such vigor that the oil and vinegar separated and she had to bind them together with an egg. She made so much noise further conversation was impossible. But when the dressing was blended and perfect she spoke once more, carelessly this time.

"Steven Barclay asked me to marry him again today."

"That's not news," Myra laughed, covering the awkwardness she felt.

"The news is," Ellen remarked slyly, "that a single feather would have shoved me over the edge and I'd have accepted."

"There's no sense advising people," Myra began, "but just the same I'm going to put my ear. I think honestly that women whose husbands love them too much are usually happier than when—well, when it's the other way around," she concluded.

"Maybe," Ellen responded briefly.

They decided to eat in the kitchen because the room was cool. Molly came in presently, dewy-eyed and freshly bathed. Mike burst in from the street, his face red as fire, his hair burnt almost straw colour. Ellen had never seen him look so well. The bicycle had succeeded in doing what all their concerted efforts had been unable to accomplish. That shining toy had born Mike away from his endless reading.

Tonight he was bubbling with plans to spend the money he had earned running errands for the corner grocer. It was his first job and already he had over $3. Apparently he meant with this sum to buy out Tiffany's to deck the women of his household. He was fairly bursting with masculinity and pride as he described to Ellen the necklace he had picked out for her.

"That's grand," she said enthusiastically. "But suppose right now you wash your face and hands

INCIDENT ON THE S.S. SUNNING.

INSUBORDINATION OF PIRACY GUARDS

Before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, the hearing was resumed of the case in which five Shantung constables were charged with insubordination towards their superior officer, Lance Sergeant Krieff, when he was in charge of the anti-piracy guard of which they were members on the s.s. Sunning on April 6, during a recent trip from Shanghai.

Mr. P. F. J. Wodehouse, C.I.E., Deputy Inspector General of Police, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Horace Lo for the defence.

Called by his solicitor to the witness-box, P. C. Chung Pui-yu stated that on the day in question he was on duty forward, taking up a position outside the Sergeant's cabin, when the latter came out and ordered him to go further forward. He pointed out to the Sergeant that it was raining, but received a repetition of the order and obeyed.

"He went back to his cabin, and I returned to my original position," witness said.

Later, when the Sergeant again saw him back in his old place, he snatched witness's rifle away from him and struck him on the ankle with the barrel (showing the marks of a bruise). He next pushed witness down to the deck below, and witness blew his police whistle.

Mr. Lo here informed the Court that he did not propose to carry the examination further, as what the witness would state thereafter accorded with the evidence of the Sergeant, regarding his arrest and detention.

Mr. Wodehouse, cross-examining witness: Why had not you said anything at all about having received the blow from the rifle on your ankle?

No Report.

Inspector Portallion, called in connexion with this point, said he did not recollect having been told anything to that effect in the report he received from the P.C.

Mr. Wynne-Jones, to witness: What is the idea of blowing the Police whistle?—Because I was struck.

Well, what do you think will happen when you blow the police whistle?—So as to draw the attention of my colleagues.

And what do you think they were going to do?—I wanted them to go up and ask the Sergeant not to strike me.

Why didn't you just go down and ask them to come up?—The Sergeant had no right to dismiss me from my post. I take my orders from the Inspector.

Was that the reason why you refused to leave your post and blew your police whistle?—Yes.

You mean you refuse to take orders from the Sergeant, is it? Now be careful how you reply.

Witness was understood to reply that that was the case.

Re-examined by his solicitor, witness said that besides a feeling of annoyance at having been struck by the Sergeant, he was also fearful—fearful lest the Sergeant should report him at Headquarters.

Found Guilty.

At the close of the case, his Worship found the offence proved in all five cases, although in various degrees.

In the case of P.C. Chung Pui-yu, his Worship found that he had disobeyed a reasonable order given by the Sergeant, and he viewed his act of insubordination in a particularly serious light in view of the fact that he was the man actually on duty as a member of the anti-piracy guard. He had also a very bad record of service. He would be sentenced to six months hard labour.

P. C. Kiang Dei-ching received three months; P. C. Yuen Ho-hing two months; and P. C. Tau Chai-ping and P. C. Hui Kai-tung a month each. Sentences are to date from April 20, the day of their first appearance before the Court.

Mr. Wodehouse informed the Court that the men would be returned to Wei-Hai-Wei after the completion of their sentences.

WOMEN'S WORLD

FOR OUR LADY READERS.

TWO CHARMING COSTUMES FOR THE YOUTHFUL.

There's glamour unmistakably youthful in this new Empire-waisted evening dress for the debutante. It's made of a soft silk that looks like wool, in a bright shade of red. Note the puff sleeves and crisscross strappings on the bodice. The square décolleté also is becoming to the youthful neck.

The out-door miss will be forgiven for doing a bit of swagging in this smart suit that hints of the open spaces where women are sportswomen. Of green frieze, the outfit was created—and posed—by Vera Borea. The turtle-neck sweater is of a flashing orange, the dashing hat of green felt.

NOTES FROM PARIS.

Fashionable Lingerie.

Pearl, mauve, coral, orchid, maize, parchment, dawn, and prawn-pink, these are the colours that are being chosen by the Paris lingerie makers for the latest lingerie sets this season. Lovely colours all of them. When you are buying your new lingerie remember that the great idea is to wear as little as possible. If you don't care for sets of different colours have half a dozen beautifully-made little garments in thick crepe-de-chine of the shade that suits you best.

Feathers and Flowers.

At the commencement of the season, this is the problem which women and girls have to consider. This year, a Paris florist has invented, to wear with flimsy evening dresses, a combination of the feather and the flower. Long, single ostrichplume feathers with a spray of pale green orchids or some other chosen flower posed on the quill centre, are one of the novel designs seen. This fashion also meets the problem of matching the bouquet of flowers in their own natural colours to some of the difficult fabric-shades of this season. The feather can be dyed or chosen of exactly the same shade as the silk, tulle, or chiffon gown, and the softening effect of flowers is introduced with success. Bouquets are coming into fashion again to wear with evening dresses. They are by no means large, and are made up in a round, slightly pointed shape. For a fair girl in a white tulle frock, a bouquet of lilies of the valley is a lovely finish.

LEMON PUDDING.

Mix together 8 oz. breadcrumbs, 2 oz. flour, 4 oz. finely-chopped suet, and 4 oz. sugar, stir in the yolks of 2 eggs, well-beaten, the juice of 2 lemons, the rinds of the lemons finely grated, and milk, enough to form a stiff, yet thorough-

LOVELY SKIN.

From experience I have come to the conclusion that it is wiser not to use water to wash the face, owing to its drying tendencies. Instead, I "wash" with cream, removing both cream and dirt with witch hazel lotion. When my skin is perfectly clean I use the same cream again for nourishing.

My make-up is lightly applied, and I am glad to see that light make-up is to be fashionable again. I choose my lipstick and rouge with care, to harmonise with my fair colouring. But I avoid late nights and too many engagements during the day in order to keep thoroughly fit for work.

STRONGER NAVY

SENATOR WANTS IT UP TO TREATY LIMITS

Washington, May 5. A navy "strong enough to keep the United States out of war" was demanded by Senator O. M. Hale at a sitting of the Naval Commission of the Senate to-day when he opened his campaign to pass a Bill authorising the building up of the navy to the treaty limits. He added that the passage of the Bill would strengthen the hands of the United States delegates at Geneva.

Referring to the "melancholy spectacle in the Far East," Senator Hale said: "Treaties in which we placed such implicit trust have utterly failed in their immediate effect, and with their prestige damaged, they cannot be relied on with any degree of safety in the future."

The United States navy to-day was far weaker relatively, than before the Washington Conference, he said.

Senator Hale warned Japan that the United States undertaking not to strengthen the naval fortification on the Pacific was based on the treaties guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China and the open door policy.—Reuter's American Service.

THE Y'S MEN'S CLUB

PRELIMINARY MEETING OF MEMBERS

The thirty members of the Hongkong Y's Men's Club met yesterday at Lane Crawford's Restaurant and completed the details of organisation before the inauguration meeting to be held to-morrow night. Mr. Tan Eng Hooi, president of the Club, was in the chair, and Mr. Wm. Yin Lee, president of the Shanghai Y's Men's Club and member of the Advisory Board of the International Association of Y's Men Clubs, addressed the members upon the spirit of Y'sdom and what it implied by its motto "Fellowship Culture-Service."

An interesting discussion ensued, concluding with Dr. Arthur Woo, second vice-president, congratulating the organiser of the Club, Mr. Yinson Lee, upon the successful formation of the Y's Men's Club of Hongkong. Mr. R. C. H. Lim, first vice-president, on behalf of the Social Committee, announced the final arrangements for the inaugural dinner to be held at Lane Crawford's Restaurant, Exchange Building, to-morrow night at 7.30. There will be dancing and musical programme. Members are asked to bring their friends, including ladies.

PERFECTING THE ART OF KILLING.

Whilst the World Disarmament Conference at Geneva is still in session, an alarming note has been struck by the almost simultaneous publication of details concerning a number of ingenious warlike inventions. Pride of place must be given to the new German super-bullet. Its inventor, Herr Gerlick, claims that it will pierce a half-inch armour plate at a distance of sixty yards. A winged device increases the normal muzzle velocity. One report declares that the bullet, fired from a rifle, will "mutilate horribly," while the invention is said to be adaptable to anti-aircraft guns and other artillery. The British War Office has been experimenting with a light weight machine gun, of the Vickers-Berthier type. It is possible that, in the future, every soldier will be equipped with some such quick-firing weapon in place of a rifle. There is also a Danish invention, the Madsen machine rifle, which is now under consideration. An automatic rifle is already in use in the United States army.

Very little is heard about the experiments in the use of poison gas and chemical warfare, which annually cost Great Britain almost as much as does the League of Nations; and, of course, this sort of research work is not being carried on in one country alone. There are signs that even some of the people with interests in armaments firms are becoming uneasy at the prostitution of science for purposes of destruction. At the annual meeting of a well-known Sheffield firm, recently, mention was made of a new armour-piercing shell. A shareholder dared to lift his voice in protest. "People are not always going to kill each other," he said. "I do hope you will turn more attention to the making of useful things, such as rails, steel doors and steel ornaments." The post-war attempt to eliminate brute force from the arbitrament of international disputes is based not so much upon fear as upon considerations of moral standards and common-sense. Yet it is certain that all these new inventions, if ever they should be used on a large scale, would make any Great War of the future a nightmare not only to the armed forces but also to the civil populations. Certain eminent authorities have claimed that the best way to abolish war is to make the weapons available so horrible that no nation will dare to precipitate hostilities. These arguments were used before 1914, but nevertheless the Great War came.

The truth seems to be that the more terrible weapons are placed at the disposal of the Powers concerned, the greater is the fear, the suspicion and the tension created in their mutual relations. A nation may easily be tempted to fight in the hope of getting in a deadly blow first and thus snatching the victory. While the League of Nations is struggling to substitute peaceful methods for the settlement of disputes and to get a sound scheme for the all-round reduction of armaments generally accepted, the old traditions die hard. In the race which is going on between the forces making for peace and those making for war, the latter have a long start. Centuries of adverse influence cannot be eliminated in the short space of twelve years. Public opinion, exerted on the right side, can make the struggle less uneven, and enable nations to perfect the art of peace as they have perfected the art of war.

British Currency Policy

A stampede back to the pound sterling would be just as embarrassing to the Bank of England and the British Government as the stampede away from it last autumn. Hence there is probably a good deal of truth in the New York report that the pound would have risen at least ten gold cents on Wednesday but for the depressing activities of British agents. Speculative upturns do not afford the solid basis that the Bank of England obviously requires before deciding the rate at which to stabilise the currency. If foreign money goes to Britain solely for the sake of an exchange profit, it can leave the country, as we found in August and September, for the same reason. And it is apt to go as it comes—on wings. Therefore, the Bank of England is apparently trying to offset the effect of the speculative purchases of sterling. It is buying foreign currencies and already, according to some authorities, the Bank has accumulated tidy balances in foreign markets as the result of these transactions. The development is a case of history repeating itself. France adopted a similar policy prior to the post-war stabilisation of the franc, or, in other words, the return to the gold standard. Much of her financial power may be traced to the volume of foreign money poured into the country in the speculative hope that on the advent of stabilisation it would be found to have increased in value. It didn't. France retained the foreign offerings in bank balances abroad, stabilised the franc at fifth of its pre-war parity with gold, and enjoyed the losses sustained by the speculators. The French banks did not move the money home after stabilisation. They let it draw interest until last year, when repatriation started, helping in part to cause those financial stresses which one financial centre after another underwent, stresses from which they seem to be rapidly recovering. But part of the recovery is due to the return

DAY BY DAY

Admitting a charge of returning from banishment having been deported for a period of ten years in January last, a Chinese who appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning was given eight months' hard labour. The defendant had been previously convicted twice for breach of the Opium Ordinance and once for larceny.

It being anticipated that the Victoria Gap murder case now before the Supreme Court and in which Mr. R. E. Lindsell is engaged will be finished before that date, Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court this morning fixed Thursday afternoon for the resumption of the Police Court trial of Tseng Kwok-yau, charged with instigating the murder of George Fung at Village Road on March 24.

GUNPOWDER IN A PARCEL

CONTRACTOR'S COOLIE FINED

For carrying a parcel of gunpowder and fuse in Water Street without properly labelling the parcel "Dangerous," a contractor's coolie who appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning, was fined $10, his Worship remarking that this type of offence was not a very common one.

of those very same floating balances that helped to cause the mischief. Are they going to lay the foundation for some future exchange panic? Too much of the world's money is used simply to shift back and forth between financial centres. In June, 1931, at the beginning of the financial panic, which spread like a prairie fire over Europe and finally over the Atlantic to the United States, it was computed that the capital lent on short-term account to foreign borrowers amounted to $500,000,000, as compared with a pre-war average of $50,000,000. If it is to be employed abroad at all, it should be sunk in more permanent enterprises than demand balances in foreign banks and other liquid assets.

BENEATH OUR FASCINATING VENEER

By "OBSERVATORE"

SO much has been written of the beauty of Hongkong by night—of the Peak with its myriad lights silhouetted against a star-besprinkled background of bluey vastness, that the critic is generally lost in admiration for the superficial, not pausing to think of another aspect—Hongkong at night beneath its fascinating veneer!

It may be urged that if the water appears to be crystal clear why stir up the mud? But perhaps some good may be achieved by discovering a means to eliminate some of the social ills—the sordidness that exists beneath a seemingly enchanting exterior.

With the unpleasant intention of seeking the truth, of delving beneath the surface, the writer recently explored a district within a few hundred square yards of Pedder Street, in the westward direction, and his experiences were nauseating in the extreme. Strolling along Queen's Road, he decided to probe behind the scenes of so-called "Massage" establishments shortly after midnight.

In the majority of cases, illuminated signs at the foot of a darkened staircase indicated the whereabouts of these places, but after entering one, guides or touts appeared and offered to conduct the adventurer to other dens where "very nice massage girls" might be engaged!

MODUS OPERANDI.

One interesting discovery was made, which may be mentioned before attempting to describe the general modus operandi practised inside these dens, and that was that in several instances, warning of the arrival of a visitor was given, usually by a bell, from a concealed point where watchers were evidently stationed. The mere act of passing through the mysterious portal was sufficient to set the warning system going, which in itself sufficed to cast doubt on the bona fides of the establishment within. On ascending the gloomy, evil smelling staircases, scuffling feet and muffled voices were heard above, and by the time the investigator entered the actual premises, two or three girls came forward and solicited patronage of the establishment. Cubicles were the rule, and most were merely formed by a running partition, divided at about every six or seven feet, the entrance being curtained. The open space between the partition and the ceiling seemed to have been forgotten by the hidden inmates, for whispering voices were invariably audible.

In each case the rule adopted was to ask for beer and food, and it must be said that in the majority of instances, the request met with refusal, but other houses were not so insistent, and beer was forthcoming! "Very good massage" was urged, but the girls who appeared for business were in themselves hardly calculated to impress their ability in that direction. Bare-legged, thin and in some cases looking positively wan and ill. Others hiding their tragic mien by the means of face paint crudely and pathetically applied. Some houses made little secret of their trade, and brazenly made sickening suggestions, almost pleading for their revolting calling.

Within practically a stone's throw of Pedder Street, these conditions obtained, and the observer shuddered in amazement that such a veritable undercurrent of loathsomeness could exist. But exist it does, and the pitiful part appeared to be that men wearing the King's uniform should be discovered in several of these haunts. It may be the case with which drink can be obtained, because even when it was refused, it was felt that the refusal was prompted by suspicion that the customer was possibly a spy.

ENLIGHTENING TOUR.

This sadly enlightening tour was continued until about 1 a.m., but even at that hour, there appeared to be little reluctance to admit callers. In fact, the later the hour, the more pronounced the importuning to stay! Truly a revolting state of affairs, and it surely must be clear that genuine massage establishments do not keep open in the early hours of the morning. As mentioned above, several houses were without outward and visible sign of their existence, and if the guides had not been employed, no amount of seeking could discover them.

The impression gained with considerable conviction was that massage establishments should all be registered, and proof given that they are genuine. It is fully realised that there are many genuine people engaged in this useful profession, at which some Eastern races excel, and in fairness to them as decent and useful citizens, those who bring discredit to that calling should be severely dealt with. They represent a social sore in Hongkong that needs drastic remedy.

WOMAN'S WORST ENEMY

By L. C. MOORE.

MANY a man who would like to be a millionaire won't take the trouble to save sixpence.

In exactly the same way, many a woman who would like to feel that she and her sisters are every bit as good as men will not take the simplest and most obvious steps towards achieving that equality.

Every mother imbues her daughter with the idea that she must give service to men.

If there are two brothers who find it necessary to perform some domestic duty, they will either toss for it or tinkle the job together. But if those two brothers have a sister they will take it for granted that she will do it.

She will be commended by her female relatives for doing so, in spite of the fact that she puts in just as many hours at the office as they do, and probably earns as much money.

Not only is this inequitable, but it is impossible to imagine anything more calculated to keep woman in her place as the servant.

Let me make it quite clear that I am not suggesting that women ought to leave domestic duties alone. If a wife takes on the running of her home as a whole-time job, and prefers that to going out to the City, then she doesn't prejudice her striving for equality in the least.

She is merely doing one kind of specialised work, while her husband does another, and they can respect each other. But when she fetches and carries for him, or brushes his hat, she helps to keep her sex just a notch or two below his.

There is another way in which women hamper themselves in their attempts to achieve equality. A bachelor friend came to dinner with us the other evening, bringing with him a girl he wanted us to meet.

When they had gone we sat in judgment, and approved—with one important reservation on my part. The girl seemed so utterly unintelligent.

My wife pointed out scornfully that my knowledge of women must be slight because the feigning of ignorance is one of the oldest tricks of the sex.

Well that may be good applied psychology for the purpose of husband-catching but it is the wrong way to make a man feel that the girl is on an equal footing with him.

If she sets out to win the man by deliberately pretending an intellectual inferiority, it is hardly to be wondered at if he accepts her at her own valuation after marriage, and smiles when she talks about equality.

And finally, women must learn that so long as she unashamedly admits that she does want to catch a man, she will never reach that equality she desires.

TWO DANGEROUS DRIVERS

FINES OF TWENTY DOLLARS

The drivers of two motor vehicles, summoned for driving in a manner dangerous to the public, were each fined $20 on their appearance before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning, the defendants in each instance having clean records.

Inspector R. H. E. Marks prosecuted a sifter of the Nga Chong Garage, the defendant admitting having driven motor car No. 3272 in a dangerous manner in Pokfulam Road, near the Hongkong University.

The officer informed his Worship, that he was travelling as a passenger in his own car going from Hongkong towards Aberdeen and when turning the corner just after the junction of Pokfulam and Bonham Roads, the defendant, who was driving another car in the opposite direction, was travelling at such a high speed, estimated to be about 35 miles an hour, that he was unable to take the corner properly. As soon as he saw the other car, the defendant applied all brakes and skidded across the road, narrowly missing the police officer's car.

Against the driver of a public motor car Sergeant Wynne alleged that he drove in a manner dangerous to the public in Des Voeux Road Central near Rumsay Street.

When first seen by the officer the defendant's car was stationary. The accused started off travelling from west to east and then turned round, to travel from east to west, narrowly missing a collision with another car. He continued and knocked down a Chinese who was carrying fish. The man was taken to hospital, where he was detained for two days.

ANTI-PIRACY RULE INFRINGED

SHIPPING CAPTAIN FINED

Captain John Jacobsen, master of the Danish vessel Gustav Dierichsen, was charged before Mr. T. W. H. Hoggard, Assistant Harbour Master, at the Marine Court this morning, under the Suppression of Piracy Regulations for having commenced a voyage at a time not previously notified and not allowed by the Inspector General of Police on May 3.

The accused pleaded guilty to the charge, and a fine of $50 was imposed.

Sub-Inspector Elston, who prosecuted, said the vessel cleared at 7 p.m. on May 3 with 300 passengers for Swatow. The police completed their search at that time, but the vessel did not actually sail until three hours later, and it was possible for bad characters to board the ship during that time.

ANXIETY FOR 20 MEN IN JAPANESE COLLIERY

Tokyo, May 6. Grave anxiety is felt regarding the fate of 20 miners who were entombed in the Nagakute coal mine, near Nagoya, due to a wall caving in in one of the pits.—Reuter.

One case of meningitis and one of diphtheria were notified to the health authorities yesterday.

SHANGHAI TRUCE AGREEMENT

TRIBUTE TO BRITISH MINISTER

London, May 5. Sir John Simon, in the House of Commons to-day, paid a tribute to the untiring efforts of Sir Miles Lampson in connexion with the Sino-Japanese agreement, and also the efforts of the French, Italian and American representatives and expressed his satisfaction at the outcome of the negotiations.—Reuter.

Withdrawal to Begin To-day.

Shanghai, May 5. Japanese military headquarters this afternoon made two announcements, first that an agreement had been signed, and second that as the first step towards implementing the understanding came to, the withdrawal of Japanese troops to designated areas will begin to-morrow, the 6th inst.

To-day the English version of the Truce agreement was signed, and the Chinese and Japanese texts will be signed to-morrow. There were six copies of the English text and two each of the Chinese and Japanese.—Reuter.

Mr. Shigemitsu's Leg Amputated

Shanghai, May 5. Despite the desperate efforts of the doctors, Mr. Shigemitsu has lost his right leg.

Dr. Goto, the famous Japanese surgeon who was rushed here from Japan at the time of the bomb outrage, decided that he must amputate, and shortly after the signing of the Peace Treaty this morning Mr. Shigemitsu entered the operating theatre.

The amputation was successful.—Reuter.

Revolt By Kirin Troops.

Chientao, May 5. Five hundred Kirin troops at Tunghua are reported to have revolted and are marching to Antung. Fresh outbreaks of banditry are disturbing the operation of the Kirin-Tunghua railway.—Reuter.

Murder by Bandits.

Mukden, May 5. Of a party of 10 Japanese who left Tsitsihar on a tour of inspection on April 25, three returned to Tsitsihar yesterday with the tragic news that three had been murdered and four missing after a bandit attack at Taychuan on May 1.—Reuter.

Criticism of Commission.

London, May 5. "The Lytton Commission's sole function so far, has been to act as a forwarding agency for the Japanese military authorities in Manchuria," declares the Manchester Guardian in a leading article.

It adds that the Commission's preliminary report consists entirely of information from Japanese sources concerning the number and disposal of Japanese troops in Manchuria, which General Honjo could have sent to the League.—Reuter.

Mission in Changchun.

Changchun, May 5. Mr. Henry Pa Yi received the League Commission and entertained them at luncheon to-day. The Commission, which is proceeding to Wunpashan to-morrow, also interviewed Mr. Hsi Hsia and General Komai.—Reuter.

Gen. Ma and The Soviet.

Shanghai, May 5. The famous General Ma Chanshan, whose exploits led him to be alternately acclaimed as hero and patriot and denounced as traitor, has wired the various local Chinese leaders, denying that he has any connexion with the Soviet and points out that it has "always been the practice of the Japanese to make groundless and malicious imputations."

He added that the accusations were "not only absolutely groundless but constituted a direct insult to our nation," after he had "doublecrossed" the Manchukuo Government.

Ma Chan-shan is reported to have gone to Blagovestchensk, but the Soviet authorities have denied his presence. He now holds the nominal post of Governor of Heilungkiang, a position given him when he convinced the Chinese Government that he was no traitor but a patriot.—Reuter's Special Service.

CHRISTIAN CULTURE.

GERMAN DECREE AGAINST FREETHINKERS

Berlin, May 5. An emergency decree dissolving all Communist and anti-God organisations on the ground that they are calculated to undermine Christian culture in preparation for a Bolshevik revolution, was issued to-day.

A second decree aims at the further curtailment of political "armies," by the close supervision of the statutes of political parties.—Reuter's Special Service.

THE WORLD AND THE POUND

"OUGHT TO BE WORTH $4.35"

VICTORY OF PAPER

(By Professor Gustav Cassel.)

The recent rapid appreciation of the more important paper currencies appears to have caused considerable surprise everywhere. Yet what has happened could have been foreseen. After England and other countries abandoned the gold standard last autumn the currencies of these countries were grossly undervalued. Distrust of all paper currency, which is only the other side of the gold superstition, led people to dispose of the new paper currencies at prices which stood in no relation to their internal purchasing power. But there is no sound basis for any such undervaluation, and it may, therefore, cease any day.

Even the slightest improvement in external conditions may produce a radical change in the valuation of currencies. Once the conviction has taken root that there is to be a permanent substantial rise in the international valuation of paper currencies, speculators are quick to take advantage of the position, and experience has shown that in such cases rates of exchange may be forced up very rapidly.

When England abandoned the gold standard she had considerable short-term debts abroad, which exercised great pressure on her currency. On the other hand, she also had long-term claims in foreign countries for incomparably larger amounts, and assuming rational management, it could only be a question of time for the significance of this fact to manifest itself in a practical form. The demand for sterling had to come, and the international value of sterling, even after some fluctuation, will rise to a level corresponding to its purchasing power parity. Even the probability of such a rise has been exploited for purposes of speculation, which has somewhat forestalled events. That, obviously, is the development which we are now witnessing. The world has regained confidence in the pound and is buying sterling in anticipation of an imminent rise. It is only natural that such a movement should be followed by a rise in other undervalued paper currencies.

The Paper Currencies.

It is necessary, at present, to form an approximately precise idea of the real value of the various paper currencies. For this purpose, the internal purchasing power of the paper currencies must be compared with that of the gold currencies; in other words, we have to calculate the purchasing power parity of the various currencies. In making this calculation it will be well to take as the starting point the three years from 1926 to 1928 following upon England's reversion to the gold standard, a period that was not affected by the present crisis. A comparison of the average wholesale price level in each country within this period with the corresponding price level in January, 1922, will show, firstly, that the internal purchasing power of gold currencies, as well as of paper currencies, had substantially risen. In the case of the English pound, for instance, purchasing power, according to the official index figures, rose from 100 to 135.

That is a fact that deserves the closest attention. To-day it is widely held that the paper currencies have experienced a substantial fall in purchasing power—that the pound is worth not more than 15s. as far as internal purchasing power is concerned. In reality, however, that is not so. The purchasing power of the paper currencies has also risen, though that of the gold currencies has risen still more. In the case of the dollar, according to Fisher's Index, the increase of internal purchasing power has been from 100 to 151.

The Swedish Krone.

What, then, is the value of the paper currencies on the basis of their internal purchasing power as compared with the internal purchasing power of the dollar? A simple calculation will show that, for instance, the Swedish krone ought to have been quoted in January, 1932, at Kr. 4.17 to the dollar, whereas the actual average dollar rate for that month was Kr. 5.22. Thus, in American currency, the value of the krone ought to have been 25 cents, whereas the above-mentioned average rate is only equivalent to 19.15 cents per krone. In the case of English currency the position is approximately the same. On the basis of its purchasing power parity the pound ought to have been worth 4.35 dollars.

Naturally, these purchasing power parities cannot be expected to represent exact comparative values, which cannot really exist at a time of abnormal movements of capital and still more abnormal restrictions in international commerce. None the less, these cal-

KOMOR'S EXHIBITION.

DELIGHTFUL PICTURES BY JAPANESE ARTISTS

Spring brings again the bi-annual picture exhibition at Messrs. Komor and Komor's art rooms, this year in their new premises, Chater Road, next door to Messrs. Kelly and Walsh; and if possible this year it surpasses the former exhibitions in variety and art.

Pictures costing from about three dollars with attractive mounts, finished by masters like Kobayashi, Tani or Terrauchi, make beautiful presents and perfect ornaments for the home. Of the larger pictures by Terrauchi, No. 2 "Odawara," No. 5 Numadzu, and No. 10 Seascape stand out as works of art; in fact every exhibit should be mentioned for all are beautiful. Kiwazaki, Tani, and Kobayashi excel in their work this year.

The new premises of Messrs. Komor and Komor adapt themselves better than the former ones for the purpose, and the impression one gets when entering this "Aladdin's Cave" of wonderful art is bound to be pleasing.

The exhibition remains open for a week only, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and if one is a lover of art one cannot do better than visit the art rooms of Komor and Komor in York Building.

SWEDISH HOUSE OF NOBLES

PICTURESQUE MEETING SCENE.

Stockholm, Mar. 30. The Swedish House of Nobles, the ancient national body of Swedish noblemen, recently held their solemn assembly in the "House of Knights," known as the finest specimen of old Stockholm architecture. The heads of the noble families gathered in the beautiful memorial hall, the walls of which are covered with the coats of arms of the noble families, and opened their meeting by paying reverence to the oldest and most aristocratic of Sweden's families, the Brahes, recently extinct by the death of the last Count Brahe, which has played such a prominent part in the history of Sweden.

Before the reforms of 1866, the House of Nobles acted as the Swedish House of Lords. It is quite a wealthy institution, for its total assets now amount to a sum of over nineteen million kronor (£1,055,556).

The House also has no fewer than 210 benevolent funds with a combined capital of about 1.3 million kronor (272,222), enabling the directors of the House to pay out annual subventions and scholarships to children in need of financial support for their education as well as pensions to widows and orphans.

Calculations provide a fair basis for estimating the real values of the paper currencies, and indubitably show how grossly the paper currencies have been undervalued. To compensate for this undervaluation, we must be prepared for the pound and the krone to rise to the figures given here.

Of course, it is impossible to take into consideration here new factors which may still arise. The present position of world economy is so uncertain that it is not possible to make precise forecasts with regard to the future. Anything may happen while the nations refuse to make use of their intelligence. At the same time there is an overwhelming probability of a change in price movements in the gold countries. The increase of the supply of currency in the United States may easily raise price levels by 10 per cent, which would immediately restore the old purchasing power parity between the dollar and the European paper currencies.

Such a development is not without danger. Above all, restoration of the old gold parity of the paper currencies might lead to a return to the gold standard. That would be a hasty step, and certainly unfortunate. So long as the stability of gold cannot be relied upon, and so long as there is no assurance that the world's gold reserves will in future be exploited more rationally than hitherto, a return to the gold standard would be worse than a step in the dark; it would be a retrogression to an unworthy dependence on incalculable economic influences and political factors.

As a matter of fact, the paper currency countries have already won a great victory by proving all over the world the possibility of deliberately controlling the purchasing power of paper currency. They must not surrender this advantage, but, on the contrary, must exploit it in favour of the interests of the world as a whole—that is to say, a monetary policy which ensures the greatest measure of stability to the general commodity price level.

TREASURE HUNT.

SUCCESSFUL AND EXCITING FEATURE CONCLUDES

After five weeks of excitement for the "hounds," the Radio Treasure Hunt, organised by Arnold's Radio Services with the co-operation of ZBW, was brought to a successful conclusion last evening, when the final clue was announced at 6 p.m., the hounds being allowed two hours in which to arrive at their final destination. There was a large gathering of hounds at Arnold's Radio Show-room in Gloucester Building when the first half of the final clue was received over the air. The second half was picked up later and finally the hounds finished at the Arcade.

UNCONSCIOUS FOR 13 DAYS

GRAND NATIONAL RIDER ON WAY TO RECOVERY

London, Apr. 4.

Mr. Fred Thackray, the amateur rider who was injured by the fall of his mount, Gregalach, in the Grand National a fortnight ago, recovered consciousness on Thursday night after having been unconscious for thirteen days.

It was stated yesterday that he is now well on the way to recovery, and that no further bulletins concerning his condition will be issued.

His mother and sister, who have been keeping a constant watch at his bedside, were present when he regained consciousness, and he recognised them immediately.

"Ah! If only I had Taken Pinkettes!"

But what is the use of regrets? The span of life is longest for those who look after themselves and care for the intricate mechanism of their internal organs. Only by careful attention to the regular functioning of the intestines can you avoid those ailments which reduce vitality and make you easy prey for more serious diseases.

Constipated people are notoriously short-lived. Therefore, let Pinkettes keep you in tune. Pinkettes cleanse the food-tract, stimulate liver and intestines, safeguard you from the attack of disease germs and make you feel one hundred per cent more vigorous and happy at the same time. Pinkettes banish constipation, biliousness, liveriness, sick headaches, correct disordered stomach, restore appetite, and ensure the internal cleanliness that contributes to long life.

NEW KEYSTONE

SECRETARY ADVANCES HOOVER DOCTRINE

New York, May 6.
An important pronouncement on foreign policy, especially in the Far East was made by Mr. Castle, acting Secretary of State, in a speech last night. He denounced the idea of a boycott against any other nation, and severely criticised the concept force on which, he held the League of Nations was founded, and advanced as a new keystone of international law the "Hoover Doctrine" that no territorial gains in violation of the Kellogg anti-war pact should be recognised.—Reuter's America Service.

If you get INDIGESTION

If you sometimes have flatulence, uncomfortable "fullness" after meals or other forms of indigestion, don't just wait for it to "pass off." Digestive trouble is nearly always due to excess acid which not only interrupts digestion but ferments food, attacks the stomach lining and, if unchecked, may eventually cause ulcers. Avoid this danger and promptly relieve discomfort by taking a little "Bisurated" Magnesia after meals. Excess acid is instantly neutralised; fermentation stops; gas is dispersed; pain disappears and your inflamed stomach lining is soothed and healed. When buying "Bisurated" Magnesia always see the oval "Bismag" sign on the carton.

LOCAL TRADE OUTLOOK

CHAMBER'S CHAIRMAN ON THE FUTURE

COLONY FORTUNATE

The annual meeting of the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce yesterday was notable for a review of trade conditions by the Chairman, the Hon. Mr. W. H. Bell, who dealt, inter alia, with the silver question, stabilisation and the future outlook.

The Secretary having read the notice convening the meeting, the Chairman said:

Gentlemen, the report and accounts of the Chamber have been in your hands for some days, and I rise to move their adoption.

Before touching upon some of the important questions which have been considered by your Committee during the past year, I am sure you would wish me to express, on your behalf, the regret which we feel at the losses the Hongkong business community has sustained by death since our last annual meeting.

Sir Newton Stubb for some years, but he was well-known to most of us, and through the London Office of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank continued in close touch with the Colony, whose interests he always had at heart. He was for years a valued member of your General Committee. His death is a great loss to the Bank and to his many friends.

We have also to deplore the untimely deaths of Mr. W. A. Hannibal, Mr. S. A. Arthur and Mr. M. Manuk, the last-named a victim of the present epidemic of meningitis. Mr. Hannibal helped us greatly in matters connected with export trade; Mr. Arthur also served us well on the Export Committee, and Mr. Manuk's special knowledge of trade between Australia and Hongkong was willingly placed at our disposal.

World Trade Depression.

A year ago world-wide trade depression was the topic of most speeches from the chair at annual meetings of Chambers of Commerce and Banks, and, as you know, the downward movement has continued without interruption, culminating in a state of financial depression and chaos which is almost unprecedented. The piling up in one or two creditor countries of vast hoards of gold, by refusal to accept payment in goods, has gravely disorganised international trade. One of the results has been that Great Britain has been forced off the Gold Standard, and this has been followed by many other countries going off the Gold Standard voluntarily. Conditions are still too obscure for me to feel justified in risking any prophecy as regards the future.

It is obvious, however, that the burden of debts arising out of the European War has become intolerable and must be adjusted speedily if revolution and consequent ruin is to be avoided. It has still to be seen how long it will be before stern necessity compels the nations to face their difficulties in a spirit of co-operation.

The Silver Question.

We in Hongkong are too far removed from the great centres of government to be able to wield much, if any, influence towards the settlement of these urgent international problems, though your Committee supported the British Chamber of Commerce in Shanghai in requesting the China Association to make representations to the British Government in favour of international action on the whole question of silver, particularly as affecting China trade and the country's ability to meet its obligations.

You will see from the annual report that we have also given consideration to the recommendations of the Hongkong Currency Commission. Supporters of stabilisation of the Hongkong currency in relation to gold had the ground cut from under their feet when Great Britain left the standard to which they desired to attach our currency. You will no doubt have read the Committee's views on this subject, and I will not take up your time by going into these somewhat technical matters in any detail. Our main conclusion, with which I feel sure the whole mercantile community will be in agreement, was to support the Commission's view that Hongkong is economically part of China and must remain on a silver standard so long as China does; that while stabilisation would facilitate the conduct of certain classes of business within the Colony, it would gravely prejudice the large import and export trade of South China, conducted or financed through Hongkong, which is the sheet-anchor of the Colony's prosperity, and would therefore affect injuriously many other branches of business.

Cause for Satisfaction.

In 1931, a year of world-wide trade depression, Hongkong imports were valued at 737 million dollars and exports at 642 million dollars. The Statistical Department gives an estimate that, in respect of imports, this represents a fall of a little over 20 per cent, as compared with 1924, and in the case of exports of approximately 30 per cent. This can in the nature of things, be only a rough calculation, but if it is anything like correct we have some cause for satisfaction.

As Hongkong residents return from furloughs spent in many different parts of the globe, and each pours forth the depressing story of conditions as he found them in the particular country visited, one cannot help entertaining feelings of thankfulness that Hongkong's peculiar position in world economy seems to protect it from the worst effects of "the economic blizzard". As an entrepot, at the doorway of South China, and as a place of security adjacent to a great country in which, unhappily, insecurity is all too prevalent, Hongkong is bound to be, even in the worst times, the centre of a certain minimum of world trade. To those of us whose interests are here, that is a cause for thankfulness.

I must digress for a moment to tell you that some of my colleagues consider that I am rather optimistic as regards the position of the port of Hongkong. I would of the rest of the world, and merely because I say that have not been so badly off I do not mean to imply that business has been good—far from it. It has been very difficult indeed, but it does not appear to have been quite so bad as in other places.

As regards the future, Hongkong is equally dependent with the rest of the world on a prompt adjustment of War Debts, to which I have alluded earlier in my speech, and must feel the results, whether for good or ill, of the Economic Conference to be held at Lausanne before very long. In the meantime caution combined with the strictest economy should be exercised by all, including the Government.

Trade Statistics.

Last July your Committee circulated members requesting their co-operation in making prompt and accurate declarations of imports and exports to the Statistical Department of the Hongkong Government in order that records of local trade might be made reasonably accurate. This step was taken in consequence of a report by the Superintendent of Imports and Exports that, since the re-establishment of the Department, a monthly average of 4,000 reminders and queries was necessitated by incorrect returns, or failure to make any returns at all. The year 1931 is the first since 1924 in respect of which complete figures are available, and, from now onwards, records will be correspondingly more valuable.

I am glad to learn that the number of queries dealt with by the Statistical Department has been considerably reduced of late, and trust that this indication of a general desire to co-operate will be maintained.

Shipping Requirements.

Work of considerable importance to Shipping in the Far East has been accomplished in connexion with the Simla Conference. The problem was the modification of Board of Trade Rules to suit local requirements. As stated in the Chairman's speech last year, the Chamber of Commerce has had the invaluable assistance of a Technical Committee which examined in detail two voluminous books of rules, and proposed a number of amendments. Early in 1931 the Committee sat in almost daily conference for five hours a day with two representatives of the Government Marine Surveyors (Mr. Lambert and Mr. Swan), of whose helpful collaboration acknowledgment is certainly due.

As a result of this preliminary work, and of further conferences held in Singapore, the Official and Unofficial members of the Hongkong delegation to the Simla Conference went there as a united body. Further, they had a close understanding with the Straits Settlements and F. M. S. delegates, as well as with the representatives of the Netherlands, East Indies. The advantage of this was that the Far Eastern point of view was more effectively presented. Although we did not get all we wanted, we helped to see that the Rules set a fair and reasonable standard for the deck passenger or pilgrim trades with which the Conference was specially concerned. You will permit me to repeat the thanks already expressed in our Report to the Chamber of Commerce delegates, Mr. F. W. James and Mr. A. MacIndoe, and I am sure they will wish me to acknowledge the skill with which the Honourable the Harbour Master led the Hongkong delegation.

Revised Rules.

Following the Simla Conference, the Government Marine Surveyors have prepared, or are preparing, revised rules for local shipping. The work done in this connexion before the Conference has not by any means been wasted. There is reason to believe that in Hongkong we shall be able very largely to achieve "legislation by agreement," thanks to the spade work already put in.

Your Committee has asked the Government to reconsider its policy in regard to the imposition of duties on perfumery and essences. It is reported to us by merchants that higher prices, consequent on the duties, have seriously curtailed the demand for imported toilet articles. Sales of raw materials to the local perfumery industry are much diminished. Some local factories have removed from Hongkong to Canton to avoid the Chinese import duties, but it is likely that their decision has been also influenced by the imposition of taxation here.

Following our representations, the Government has revised the method of calculating the duties, but has not yet seen its way to remove them altogether. The Chamber has pressed strongly for this on the ground that any interference with the freedom of the Port of Hongkong is to be deprecated.

Piece Goods Dispute.

Questions now exercising the minds of merchants interested in piece goods and sundries were discussed here so recently as not to require further detailed reference on this occasion. A conference has since taken place with representatives of the Chinese Piece Goods Guild, and their criticisms of the present standard contract have been handed in. Acting under a resolution passed by the General Meeting of Importers on 14th April, a special committee has been appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to consider the question of revising the Chamber's Standard Form and, if possible, bringing it more closely into line with the Manchester and Bradford "China Contract."

At the same time the Guild's views will receive careful consideration, and it is hoped that it may be found possible to make the Chamber's contract a standard for all textiles.

Messrs. W. Brackenridge, L. J. Davies and K. S. Morrison—all gentlemen possessing the necessary knowledge and experience—have kindly consented to form the Special Committee. We wish them every success in their difficult task of reconciling divergent views.

The Language School.

The number of students on the roll of the Language School during 1931 was 31, which is fairly satisfactory, although a smaller number than in the previous year. A new text-book, written by the Rev. H. R. Wells, was adopted about a year ago, and is found to facilitate more rapid acquisition of the language. This is important, because transfers to other ports make it difficult for students to "stay the course" if it is a long one. In fact, our chief difficulty is the withdrawal of students, for various reasons, before they have obtained a certificate of proficiency. The Rev. H. R. Wells, Director of the School, will return in the Autumn, and I am sure that under his charge a high standard of instruction will continue to be maintained.

It has been suggested that a Mandarin Section should be formed in connexion with the School, and that instruction in Mandarin should form the basis for Cantonese or other dialects. The great majority of the students attending the School are required by their firms for work in Hongkong, Kwangtung or Kwangsi, in which districts Cantonese is the only dialect which is universally used by the Chinese business community. The Committee takes the view that the period of tuition would be too long if students had first to qualify in Mandarin before taking up the study of Cantonese. I am afraid we should lose the support which has been built up with great difficulty. Further, it is almost impossible to obtain qualified teachers in Mandarin and students would have no opportunity for daily practice in the use of the dialect. In response to a circular to members, only one firm favoured the formation of a Mandarin class, and no further steps were taken in the matter.

The Accounts.

The Chamber continues to subscribe to Reuters service of commercial telegrams on behalf of nearly thirty members, amongst whom the cost is distributed. The charge per subscriber is reasonable and a reduction could be made if additional subscribers were enrolled. The Secretary will be glad to supply particulars to members who are interested.

As regards the accounts of the Chamber for the past year, it will be noted that income from the two principal sources of revenue—membership subscriptions and rice

SCHEME TO HELP THE EMPIRE.

COMPREHENSIVE PLAN BY BRITISH INDUSTRIALISTS

London, May 6.
A vast scheme for inter-imperial co-operation has been elaborated by the Empire Committee of the Federation of British Industries in preparation for Ottawa and is described as "Rationalisation of industry on an Empire Basis."

The report brings attention to the United States' efforts to make North and South America into a commercial whole, Japan forming a powerful bloc in the Far East, France building up a Colonial Empire, the Central European coalition on tapers and the fact that the Dominions are suffering as much as Britain from foreign penetration, which indicated the need of a far-reaching economic co-ordination. This could be accomplished by means of a scheme of "complementary production" and the closest co-operation of the British Dominions.

The industrialists aimed at the discouragement of uneconomic production by protection and "efficient" industries and otherwise freetrade within the empire with duty against the foreigner.

Monetary System.

Further recommendations embrace Imperial transport, publicity propaganda, migration, education, films and monetary policy, in which connexion the committee points out that in the past 10 years there has been a default of interest and payments on £145,000,000 foreign loans.

SUBMARINES AND MINES.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION AT DISARMAMENT

Geneva, May 5.
After a strenuous discussion on Britain's suggestion for the abolition of submarines as offensive weapons, the Naval Committee of the Disarmament Conference has come to no decision and the question of "mines" has been tackled. Britain favours the abolition of contact mines in the open sea, if submarines are also abolished. The Italian delegate declared that if submarines were abolished, capital ships should also be abolished. The Polish delegate said that the submarine was only a defensive arm against superior naval strength but he was prepared to follow the example of the principal signatories of the London Naval Treaty in that connexion.

issued in London, whereas no Empire country has defaulted. The Committee recommends the exploration of all methods of international action to solve financial problems, aiming at the creation of a financial monetary system revolving round sterling, firstly within the Empire to remove inter-Empire exchange difficulties, and secondly in conjunction with foreign countries for close trading relations with the Empire.—Reuter.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE S.P.C.A.

REVIEW OF YEAR'S WORK BY PRESIDENT

The annual meeting of the Hongkong Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was held in the board room of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co., yesterday. Those present were Mr. J. Russell (president), Mr. H. E. Rouse (vice president), the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave, Capt. Tregillus, Messrs. R. A. D. Forrest, D. Davies, M. P. Talati, F. G. Maunders, Lady Pollock, Mesdames Losby, de Martin, Roffey, Wodehouse, Forrest, and Baker.

The Chairman said: We have this year printed our annual balance sheet with statement of accounts, and forwarded a copy to all subscribers. I feel sure you will agree this is a very necessary innovation and worthy of the small cost involved in printing and postage.

By this means we have now a membership roll and list of those who generously help our work by subscribing to our funds.

The balance sheet has now been in your hands for some time and I will, with your permission, take it as read and formally move the approval of same, after which I shall be pleased to answer any questions to the best of my ability. The work of the society has been carried on during the past year quietly but very successfully. Our monthly meetings have been well attended and although they are nominally committee meetings a cordial invitation is given to all those interested in our work to attend. We meet here on the first Thursday in each month at 5.30 p.m. so that anyone who may be of help can come forward and we will be pleased to have all assistance. No great schemes have been carried out during the past season's work. Due to depressed conditions and lack of money the plan to build a central place for the exhibition and sale of birds and animals has not reached the building stage yet, but we have hoped that in the near future the Government will see fit to consider this very necessary building as part of the community plans for the better housing of birds and domestic animals.

The Aquarium.

A private concern, as you are aware, has opened a small aquarium where birds, fish and other animals are exhibited. I cannot say your committee approve of the place; in fact we feel justified in saying we do not consider the place as at all suitable for such purposes and would prefer that, if such a place is desirable, then a central and well ventilated hall should be provided, under the supervision of the authorities. We feel that greater consideration could be obtained on this important matter. No one will doubt the educational value of a properly conducted aquarium. Mrs. Baker, when on leave, very kindly obtained pamphlets with details of a humane killer as used in the killing of animals in all the abattoirs at home. We intend printing a circular and forwarding same to those who have charge of this work in the Colony.

The work of our inspectors is much appreciated and due to their efforts much needless cruelty is prohibited. The Home for unwanted dogs at Kowloon is maintained in a good and clean condition and we invite the inspection of all lovers of dogs to this section of our work.

The Lethal Chamber.

The lethal chamber installed there is serving a very useful purpose and I am pleased to say that due to the economical work of our inspector, Mr. Fowler, we can show a little profit from this source. I am greatly indebted to the help given to me as President, from all members of the committee. We welcome back to our midst Lady Pollock, Lady Ho Tung and Mrs. Baker who, while on leave, we had their good wishes as our support. Our Annual Carnival Dance, while not so profitable as the previous one, was quite a success and our Poster Competition, in connexion with which we are indebted to Mrs. Losby, was of interest and proved of great help in advertising our dance.

Our thanks are also due to the press for their kindness in helping with space to advertise our work. We take this public opportunity of saying to Messrs. Jardine Matheson and Company how much we appreciate their kindness in allowing the society the use of this room for all our meetings. On behalf of the committee and members, I thank Mr. Maunders our secretary for his services; also Mr. White, our treasurer. The work of those two gentlemen had made my duties exceedingly pleasant and light and we here express our sincere thanks. Their work is of the utmost importance to the continuation and well-being of this society, and we are indeed fortunate in having the valued services of Mr. Maunders and Mr. White.

To all those who have subscribed and helped us in our work, we thank you. The Dog's Home. As a matter of much importance to the society, I must again refer to the dogs' home. Due to alterations in the vicinity of the home, we are brought into close proximity with the road. Children are now able to tease the dogs and their barking will become troublesome to those staying close by. We feel it is necessary to apply for another site, probably larger in area, where more accommodation would be available for exercising the animals, and a small house could be erected for stray cats. At any rate it seems to me we must soon remove our home to a more suitable place.

I would commend the work of our society to all those who have love in their hearts. The love of animals is pointed out to us by all great leaders and I would strongly suggest to all Churches and kindred societies to help us by devoting a little of their activities to the work of protection of animals.

Essay Competition.

Our Essay Competition for Girl Guides and Boy Scouts again provided keen competition among the boys and girls of those associations. I had the privilege of being present at the presentation of the cups. I have to thank the leaders of those associations for the great interest taken in this Essay Competition. The cups keep alive the interest shown to our society by Sir Henry and Lady Pollock, and the Cup presented to the Chinese Girl Guides keeps the memory of Donor old Jack ever before us. We would again seek the co-operation of the scout and guide leaders in this essay competition.

Before closing my remarks I should like to say that we would be pleased to get into touch with any members of kindred societies who may reside in or visit the Colony. An exchange of views is at all times useful and we will be very pleased to welcome any visitors to our meeting.

With these few words I beg to move approval of our balance sheet and Report, after which I shall be pleased to answer any questions to the best of my ability.

The report and balance sheet, which disclosed that the Society was in a satisfactory financial position, were adopted.

Answering a question the chairman said he considered the publicity gained from the holding of the annual carnival dance was its most important feature. He said the falling off in the profits was due to the smaller attendance.

Election of Officers.

The election officers resulted as follows:

President Mr. J. Russell, Vice-President Mr. D. Davies, Secretary Mr. F. G. Maunders, Treasurer Mr. J. B. Macdonald.

Committee, Lady Ho Tung, Mesdames Baker, Forrest, Losby, de Martin, Roffey, Wodehouse, Martell, Hall, and Messrs. Owen Hughes, S. W. Ko, M. P. Talati, E. C. Tregillus, B. Veliki, H. S. Rouse, Dr. K. C. Yeo and the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave.

When the business of the meeting had concluded, the chairman and Mr. Davies referred to the pending departure of Mrs. Wodehouse. Both paid a tribute to the manner in which she had assisted the Society and wished her every happiness in the future.

SECRETS OF JAPANESE CONSULATE CELLAR

LINDBERGH OUTRAGE OFFSHOOT GASTON MEANS ARRESTED FORMERLY IN U.S. SECRET SERVICE

Washington, May 5.
A sensational offshoot of the Lindbergh kidnapping case, Gaston B. Means, described as a friend of the late President Harding, was arrested in Washington to-day on a charge of obtaining money by false pretences.
Means is accused of securing the payment of $3100,000 from the wife of the publisher of the Washington Post, a leading American newspaper, by representing that he was in a position to recover the Lindbergh baby.
EX-SECRET SERVICE MAN.
The accused was formerly in the American Secret Service, being very prominent in connection with the Teapot Dome Oil Scandal.
He has been in the limelight at intervals since 1917 when he was involved in a charge of murder made in connection with the death of a wealthy woman whose estate he had in part managed.
During the investigation he also became involved in an investigation of an alleged German spy plot.
STARTLINGLY FRANK.
His testimony in regard to both these things was startlingly frank as it has been in every other case in which he has been involved.
Some time later he was accused in New York of being implicated in a rum running plot in which more than $1,000,000 worth of liquor was smuggled into the country. He frankly admitted his part in it, saying he had done it as an agent of the Department of Justice in order to get evidence on the smugglers. The Department issued a brief non-committal statement saying he was at that time an agent for the Department and that he rendered valuable assistance. About that time he ceased to be an agent of the Department.

TEAPOT DOME OIL SCANDAL ALBERT FALL TO BE RELEASED

Washington, May 5.
Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, in the Harding Administration, who was convicted of accepting a bribe in the Teapot Dome oil lease scandal and sentenced to imprisonment for a year and a day, is being released from the New Mexico State Prison on Sunday.

EUROPEAN DAVIS CUP TIES

MONACO LEAD AT OSLO

London, May 5.
At Brussels to-day, Switzerland carried their Davis Cup victory over Belgium to five straight matches. Fisher beating Van Zuylen, 8-6, 6-1, 8-6, while Aeschlimann beat De Eckhout 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.
At Budapest, Hungary beat Finland by five matches to nil, the final games resulting in a win for Gubrovitz (Hungary) over Blaudet by 6-1, 6-1, 6-1, and for De Koning over Grottenfolt by 6-0, 6-3, 6-4.
At Oslo, Monaco gained a two matches lead over Norway on the opening day's play of their Davis Cup contest.
Gallepe (Monaco) beat Hagen (Norway), 6-3, 6-4, 6-8, 6-1.
Landau (Monaco) beat Torkildsen (Norway), 7-5, 6-2, 6-2.

SOVIET TORTURE ALLEGATIONS RUSSIANS SUBJECTED TO THIRD DEGREE HARBIN PROTESTS (SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH.")

Mukden, May 6.
THIRD DEGREE IN A CELLAR, WITH JAPANESE OFFICIALS DIRECTING OPERATIONS, ARE AMONG SERIOUS CHARGES OF THE TORTURING OF SOVIET NATIONALS UNDER THE JAPANESE-MANCHUKUO REGIME IN NORTH MANCHURIA, WHICH ARE BEING MADE IN SOVIET QUARTERS.
Relations between Japan and Russia are becoming increasingly strained following further charges of "provocative acts"—apart from the torture allegations.

NOT A RECORD SIBERIA MAIL MISTAKE

A new mail speed record between England and Hongkong was thought to have been established to-day, when the P. and O. liner Ranpura came in with 118 bags of English mail.
Postal advices from Shanghai had stated that the mail was dated London, April 19th, which would have broken the previous fastest time, 18 days on April 1st of this year, by twenty-four hours.
Examination of the mail during sorting, however, revealed that the date of departure from London was April 16th, making the time of journeying 20 days, which is more or less normal.

GOVERNMENT GRATITUDE!

WILL OF INVENTOR OF MILLS BOMB

(Reuter's Special Service).
London, May 5.
Sir William Mills, the inventor of the famous Mills bomb, who died in January last at the age of seventy-six, left an estate valued at £37,829.
It is revealed that only a little over £37,000 was granted to him by the Government for the invention of his bomb, of which 75,000,000 were made for the Allies during the war.
The Royal Observatory reports that the anticyclone over North China has increased in intensity. The depression is situated in the Sea of Japan to the S.W. of Hokkaido. Local forecast:—East winds, moderate; fine to cloudy.
The forthcoming wedding is announced of Mr. Marcelino Francisco de Paula Barrios, St. Joseph's Building, "C" Block, second floor, to Miss Anna Teresa Pereira, of the same building, "A" Block, ground floor.
In passing a hand-truck, a Sanitary Department lorry in Wing Lok Street, yesterday, knocked down one of the coolies, causing internal injuries from which the man died after admission to the Government Civil Hospital.
Pleading guilty before Mr. Fraser at the Kowloon Magistrate's Court this morning, Capt. D. Dunlop, of the Hongkong and Singapore Brigade, R.A., was fined $5 for driving a private motor-car along Nathan Road on April 4 without an appropriate licence.

During recent weeks, more than a hundred Soviet citizens resident in Harbin have been arrested by agents of the Japanese-Manchukuo Government and Soviet sources allege that they have been subjected to ill-treatment by White Guards, who are now employed by the Chinese police in Harbin, an action which itself is regarded as an act of hostility to Soviet Russia.

CONSULATE INVOLVED.
It is further alleged that most of the arrests were made by Japanese gendarmes, who have taken their "victims" to a cellar in the Japanese Consulate and subjected them to a third degree examination before delivering them to the Chinese Police Detective Department.
Many of those arrested have declared a hunger strike to register their protest against the "inhuman methods of examination."

"BARBARIC TORTURE."
It is stated, on reliable authority, that the Soviet Consul-General at Harbin has reported to Moscow on the "barbaric torture" to which Soviet nationals have been exposed in an endeavour to force them to admit to the perpetration of "invented crimes."

LEFTY GROVES SHOWS CLEVELAND HOW

Bill Terry Hits His Seventh Homer

New York, May 5.
The Athletics staged a runfest to-day against Cleveland Indians, whose recent sequence of success was brought to a disastrous termination. Lefty Groves fanned five and hit twice in the seventh inning, in which the Athletics scored seven runs.
Kamm, McNair and Fox hit home runs, the circuit clout of Fox being fifth of the season.
Jolley scored a home run for the Reds at Boston.
In the National League, both leaders stopped. The Braves took the short end of a 9-6 game at Cincinnati, where Lombardi and Schumacher hit home runs.
Chicago lost a tight game before their own barrack-squad.
The Cardinals failed to maintain their recent improved form when the Giants came along with their heavy hitters. Bill Terry again took the lead in home run row, scoring his seventh of the season, while Blades also battered the pill for a run round.
The results were:
National League.
Cincinnati 9 Boston 6
Chicago 1 Brooklyn 2
St. Louis 6 New York 10
American League.
Boston 3 St. Louis 11
Philadelphia 15 Cleveland 8.

PATHETIC SCENE SHANGHAI TRUCE SIGNATURES (Our Own Correspondent).

Shanghai, May 6.
Finishing touches will be applied to the Shanghai peace agreement to-day when the Chinese and Japanese versions of the historic document will be signed.
Lieut-General Shirakawa, who is rapidly recovering from the wounds he received in the bomb outrage, yesterday issued an order for the withdrawal of the Japanese troops into the specified areas, the retirement to commence almost at once and to be completed in four weeks.
PALE AND WAN.
Pathetic scenes were witnessed at the hospital yesterday when the peace delegates entered the room where Mr. Shigemitsu, the Japanese Minister, was lying preparatory to the operation for the removal of his leg.
Attended by his brother and three doctors, Mr. Shigemitsu was lying in bed, pale and wan, with sunken cheeks.

FRIENDSHIP WISH.
He greeted the three bearers of the text of the agreement, Messrs. Samuel Chang, Okasaki and Blackburn, and to Mr. Chang, whom he greeted very cordially, he expressed a desire that he would convey to the Chinese people his wish that the Chinese and Japanese might be friends.
The text of the agreement was handed to him and after an examination, he picked up a pen with his right hand, which was bandaged and bloodstained and affixed his signature to the document.

TREATY TOASTED.

Shortly after noon yesterday, after Mr. Shigemitsu had appended their signature, a toast in celebration of the successful conclusion of the conference was joined in by all the delegates able to attend at the British Consulate.
LAST OF OTTAWA
ADVISERS
SIR D. NEWTON, M.P., APPOINTED
London, May 5.
It was announced to-day in the House of Commons that Sir Douglas Newton, M.P. for Cambridge, has been appointed adviser on agricultural questions attached to the United Kingdom Delegation to the Ottawa Conference.
Sir Douglas Newton, who has represented Cambridge as a Conservative since 1922, was chairman of the Cambridge University Council in 1921-22. He acted as Assistant Secretary (unpaid) to the Minister in Charge of Reconstruction from 1917 to 1919, and in 1922-23 was Chairman of the National Agricultural Council.

MANCHURIA ANARCHY REBELS IN REAR OF JAPANESE HEAVY FIGHTING

Harbin, May 6.
Meeting with fierce resistance at several points, the powerful Japanese drive against the insurgents on the eastern section of the Chinese Eastern Railway continues.
They are proceeding up the Hu-Hai Railway, meeting with comparatively little resistance, while along the Sungari River, they have now occupied Sansing and Fangcheng, after very heavy fighting.
SEVERE LOSSES.
Both at Sansing and Fangcheng, the insurgents were in strength and resisted the attack until compelled to retire by the severity of their losses. It is estimated that the Chinese casualties in these two battles were two thousand. The Japanese losses, believed to be heavy, have not been officially announced.

Along the western section of the C. E. R., the Japanese have occupied Antschan, some eighty miles from Harbin and the defeated forces are retreating to the west.
Nevertheless, in spite of the Japanese successes, the operations of the insurgents shows little sign of lessening.

NEW MENACE.

A serious menace has now appeared in the arrival of a very strong force near Harbin. While the Japanese are advancing along the Chinese Eastern Railway, Chinese troops have suddenly sprung into activity between the advancing Japanese and Harbin.
Particularly large is one force which has carried out a series of violent attacks on the Chinese Eastern Railway about sixty miles from Harbin, well to the rear of the Japanese.

ANARCHY PREVAILS.

An armoured train has been sent to assist the Manchukuo garrisons in resisting these forces.
Along the whole of the Chinese Eastern Railway, eastern section, anarchy prevails. The railway is being constantly attacked and whole sections destroyed.

HIS EXCELLENCY DEPARTS

WARM SEND-OFF AT QUEEN'S PIER

A large crowd of Hongkong's most prominent residents assembled on Queen's Pier this morning to bid farewell to H. E. the Governor and Lady Peel who are proceeding to England on leave by the Empress of Japan.
Shortly after 10.30 a.m., cars began to arrive and a few minutes before 11 o'clock, a distinguished gathering was present.
His Excellency and Lady Peel arrived punctually. As they emerged from their car, the band from St. Louis' Industrial School played the National Anthem.
Sir William reviewed a contingent of girls from St. John's Ambulance Brigade. He then shook hands with his many friends on the wharf.
The farewells completed, the Governor's launch cast off and he pulled slowly away from the wharf the band played "Auld Lang Syne". Handkerchiefs fluttered and hats were waved from the launch while the Governor and Lady Peel responded from the bow of the launch.
Hands of Government departments, consular representatives, the clergy, Army, Navy and Air Force were represented.
The British of Japan sailed.

DON JUAN OF ROYAL NAVY CRUISE IN INDIA WATERS. (Reuter's Special Service).

Fontainebleau, May 5.
Don Juan, the third son of ex-King Alfonso of Spain, has finished his naval studies at Dartmouth College and has returned to his parents at Fontainebleau.
It is learned, however, that the young Prince will leave again shortly to join a British warship on a cruise to India in order to gain practical experience of the sea.
He will be absent with the Royal Navy for about two years.

IRELAND'S OATH BREACH OF TREATY: BRITAIN STATES ATTITUDE

London, May 5.
Asked in the House of Commons to-day whether he would consider the advisability of submitting the dispute over the treaty with the Irish Free State to a specially constituted court of appeal or to the International Court of the Dominions, Secretary Mr. J. R. Thomas replied that Mr. De Valera had deliberately chosen to propose the abolition of the Parliamentary oath from the Irish Free State constitution by unilateral action.
Mr. Thomas added, in reply to a supplementary question: "The matter in dispute is a treaty agreement between two parties. It is customary, when there are differences of opinion, for one or the other to ask for a consultation to discuss them."
"Mr. De Valera, without consulting or intimation of any kind, proposes to break his side of the treaty."
—British Wireless.

NONE THE WORSE FOR CAPTIVITY

London, May 5.
The Air Ministry to-day received information that Flying Officer Evans and leading Aircraftman Evans, who recently made a forced landing and were taken prisoners by a tribe in Northern Kurdistan, have been released and have returned to their unit.
Both are reported to be well.
—British Wireless.

RACKETEERS. THREAT DEMAND $50,000 FROM EDISON'S SON

(Reuter's Special Service).
Philadelphia, May 5.
"Give us fifty thousand dollars or we shall prevent you from marketing your invention," is the threat held over the head of William Edison, son of the world-famous inventor, who is seeking to follow in his father's footsteps.
Mr. William Edison shares the fortune of $12,000,000 left by his father.

WORLD CRISIS. THE BORAH CURE RESTORATION OF SILVER

Washington, May 5.
A three-fold programme for world economic recovery, namely, disarmament, the settlement of the reparations problems and the restoration of silver to the place it occupied prior to 1926, was outlined to a crowded Senate by Senator Borah to-day.
Senator Borah, who is the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, represents Idaho, one of the American silver-producing States, has a larger popular following than any other Senator, his words carrying farther than anyone in Washington with the exception of the President.
NO LEADERSHIP.
He is a firm advocate of a reduction of war debts and reparations, and to-day he expressed the opinion that a return of prosperity to the world was impossible unless his programme was carried out.
He concluded: "If the United States threw its influence behind the movement to restore silver, it would succeed."
"We have no leadership," was his parting shot.
—Reuter.

Senator Borah.
The House of Commons to-day considered the advisability of submitting the dispute over the treaty with the Irish Free State to a specially constituted court of appeal or to the International Court of the Dominions, Secretary Mr. J. R. Thomas replied that Mr. De Valera had deliberately chosen to propose the abolition of the Parliamentary oath from the Irish Free State constitution by unilateral action.

THE MORATORIUM.
London, May 5.
The Chancellor of Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain stated in the House of Commons to-day that the next payment for interest on war debts to America would normally fall due on June 15th next, but has been postponed under the Hoover Moratorium.
The next payment thereafter falls due on December 15th. There would be, no doubt, an opportunity to discuss the Government's policy with regard to war debts and reparations before the last-named date.
Asked whether two payments would have to be made in December next, Mr. Chamberlain replied: "Only one."
—British Wireless.

PREMIER'S EYE OPERATION

SUCCESSFULLY DONE YESTERDAY

London, May 5.
A bulletin issued this evening stated: "The operation on the Prime Minister's right eye was undertaken successfully at four o'clock this afternoon."
At the King's request, the result of the operation was telephoned to him at Buckingham Palace at the earliest moment.
—British Wireless.

TREASURY ORDER PASSED BY BIG MAJORITY

London, May 5.
The House of Commons by 406 votes to 70 to-day agreed to the Government resolution approving the tariff duties imposed under the Treasury Order on the recommendations of the May Committee.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

Secretary, American Bridge League.

The writer has long advocated the use of the One over One, and under the McKenney system of contract bidding it is employed as follows:

Supposing you hold:
Spades—A K x x x
Hearts—x x x
Diamonds—A K x x
Clubs—x

You would open with one diamond, your four-card suit. We will assume that the opponents always pass. Your partner bids one heart. He is asking you to rebid and shows at least one and one-half tricks. You can respond with two spades—a jump shift forcing bid now, demanding that partner keep the bidding open until game is arrived at. You have told partner that your hand holds four diamonds and five spades. If he re-bids his hearts he immediately advises you that he cannot support your five-card suit, and that he holds at least five hearts himself, therefore you can bid for game in hearts, even though you hold only three.

The above type of hand is rather simple to bid. The one that will cause the beginner the most confusion is the type where we will say you open with one heart.
Partner bids one spade, making a forcing One over One bid. Now if you simply hold a four-card heart suit and only your two and one-half quick tricks, and not normal support in spades, you will reply to partner's One over One spade bid with one no trump, advising partner that your hand contains a four-card suit and is a minimum.

If you hold a five-card heart suit and still a minimum, you will reply with two hearts, advising partner of the fact that you hold at least a five-card suit as you re-bid your suit and still have only the minimum in quick tricks.
Partner has received the whole picture of your hand and the contract is not above two. When you respond with one no trump, he may either pass, re-bid his suit, he can do any of these with an absolute picture of your hand.

The most important thing to bear in mind when employing the One over One convention is to not think just because partner has made a One over One that there is game in the hand. The bid is not made for that purpose. In reality it is asking you to give detailed information about your hand, and if you hold a minimum, be very frank and so inform partner.

Supporting partner's suit or rebidding your own suit after the One over One:

Supposing you make an original bid for one heart, partner bids one spade. You hold normal support in spades, which is four small, or

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Sanitary Board Election

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—As an elector, I find the mass of correspondence, editorial comments, statements, etc., all rather complicated. What seems to me to be a matter of importance is whether primarily Mr.
Mow Fung is to represent the Colony as a whole, or whether primarily he is only to represent Kowloon. I do not read Mr. Lo's letter as containing an attack on the K.R.A.; he points out an important paragraph in the K.R.A.'s letter and analyses two possible meanings of that statement. I see now that the K.R.A.
has advanced a third meaning, namely, that it is merely to enable its candidate to get over an "inferiority complex" in regard to his lack of technical knowledge.
On the fact of it I confess this meaning was not very clear.

As I say, it is important for the electors to know Mr. Mow Fung's exact position. In Mr. Mow Fung's letter, by way of reply to Mr. Lo, he states,—"I wish, however, to reply to his charge that I am standing primarily in the interests of a section of the community only, and that the interests of the Colony as a whole will come second." He then proceeds, not to reply to that charge, but to build up the case that, by paying special attention to the affairs of Kowloon, he will be serving the interests of the Colony as a whole. All this argument is very unconvincing to me. In any case how does Mr. Mow Fung explain away this important sentence which comes at the beginning of the K.R.A.'s letter announcing that this body had nominated Mr.
Mow Fung—"In deciding on this nomination your Committee had in view primarily the necessity of securing adequate representation of Kowloon's special requirements on all public bodies."

Now that it has been pointed out that Dr. Basto, who is doing such good work on the Sanitary Board, is already a member of the Committee of the K.R.A., how can the K.R.A. explain its alleged reason in deciding upon Mr. Mow Fung's nomination?

ELECT.

three to the ace, king or queen.
You should raise partner the full extent of your hand immediately.
You must remember that partner may hold only one and one-half tricks, although he has made a One over One bid. If you now bid two spades, you would say to partner, "Even though you hold only one and one-half tricks and a four-card spade suit, I have enough support in my hand to allow you to make two spades. If you have any more, bid them yourself."

If you open with one heart and partner bids one spade and you have a strong five-card heart suit and additional quick tricks, show them to partner by bidding three hearts. Remember that if you bid two hearts, you are showing him a minimum five-card suit with only two and one-half tricks.

In ancient Greece, athletes pitched their tents on the Plains of Elis when they entered the Olympic Games. And at Los Angeles this summer 1932 athletes will have their own community where they will be housed and fed. Photo shows work on the "Olympic Village" under construction.

Caspar Oliver (above), farmer, was recently arrested at Somerville, N.J., on a charge of possessing stolen property. A stolen automobile was alleged to have been discovered, partially hidden by hay, in a barn on a farm near Hopewell, N. J. Police originally suspected a connexion with the Lindbergh case.

Discovery of this hay-covered automobile in a barn near Hopewell, N.J., caused the arrest of Oliver.

The dime-a-dance girl

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

Beautiful Ellen Roswell, employed at Har-day's Department Store, works nights as a dance hall hostess. She lives with her mother, Molly Roswell, her elder sister, Myra, and her baby brother, Mike.
Steven Barclay, 27 and owner of Barclay's, is in love with Ellen. Twice she refuses to marry him because she loves handsome Larry Harrowgate, an artist who has met at the dance hall. She loves him despite the fact that his engagement to Elizabeth Bowes, a de-butante, has been announced. Ellen agrees to pose for Larry. At his studio she sees a photograph of Elizabeth Bowes. He explains casually that Elizabeth is a friend.
Ellen decides to break with Larry, but he comes again to the dance hall and asks her to lunch with him and his mother the following day. For the first time he kisses her. Next day at the store she receives a note saying he will be unable to keep the date.
Heart-broken, Ellen reads in a newspaper society column that Elizabeth Bowes has returned from Europe.

CHAPTER XXV.

Ellen's heart burned with a sort of never ending fire. She was bitter, rebellious, tired and unhappy. Above all she was bewildered.
It was unthinkable that she should have been so close to happiness only to miss it in the end.
Larry must have meant to tell her that his engagement was broken. Why else should he ask her to meet his mother? Nevertheless there was the cruel, cruel note. Why had he written it? What circumstance had caused him to change so suddenly? To the wretched girl only one answer suggested itself. The return of Elizabeth Bowes from Europe.
Ellen flung herself into work at the store; flung herself with wild abandon into her duties at Dreamland. She would forget Larry; she must. She tried to fill every moment so there would be no time to think, no time to remember that she had lost the man she had never owned. But there were times when she was shaken with envy and jealousy.

While these thoughts seethed and boiled in her mind the girl laughed and danced and chattered. How she talked those breathless August nights to men whose faces faded to nothingness even as they turned away! Tony, the gambling little hostess who had become Ellen's best friend, was not deceived by this gaiety.
"There's lots of fish left in the sea," she ventured to say once.
"I don't know what you mean, Tony," Ellen had replied, lifting brilliant eyes.
"Never mind," said Tony and dropped the matter.
Someone else was unwilling to drop matters so easily. Steven Barclay had been watching the change in Ellen, had seen her growing pale and listless even as she burned with energy. Steven had suffered with her. Toward the middle of the second week he called Ellen into his office. He spoke directly.
"I thought you trusted me," he began.
"But I do, sir," Ellen protested uncomfortably.
"Then don't call me sir."
"It's just habit. I won't do it again, sir."
They both laughed. After that it was easier. All at once Ellen saw Steven Barclay again, saw him in all his kindness and gentleness for the first time in weeks.
During that time she had had hurried engagements with him but always his image had been blurred by the image of the man who was absent.

"You're working yourself to death and I won't have it," Steven said sternly. "I'm too fond of you to see you deliberately drive yourself to a nervous collapse."
Ellen found his anxiety comforting, found it sweet to forget the fears and fevers which had consumed her and to be wrapped in this infinite gentleness. She roused abruptly.
"It won't be for long now," she said with a grateful smile. "Two weeks from tomorrow I'm giving up my job at Dreamland. I've slacked at the store, I know. I've been so tired but I'll do better soon."
"Give up both jobs tomorrow," Steven suggested suddenly. "Give them up and marry me. Let me take you to Switzerland where it's always cool and the whole world plays. Let me give you leisure.
Let me take over the responsibilities that are wearing you to a shadow!"
Switzerland in midsummer, Molly and Mike cared for, Myra able to marry—oh, it was an alluring vision to the weary, heavy-eyed girl. She saw herself with the world for a playground, saw at her side a man who adored her, a man who could give her everything except the will-o'-wisp she had fancied she found in Larry Harrowgate's laughing eyes.
"I can't do it," Ellen whispered.
For the first time Steven experienced the sharp shock of jealousy. He asked in deadly earnestness the question Larry Harrow-gate not three weeks before had put so lightly.
"Ellen, is there someone else?"
"Not now," she muttered.
The lanky head came up.
"There never was," she amended definitely, wary eyes on Barclay's face lest he should read her shame and pain.

Steven dared not continue. He watched her as she murmured a goodbye and slipped away from his office. That was on Wednesday.
Ellen pleaded off from her duties at Dreamland and went directly from the store to the Brooklyn apartment. Molly, stretched out on a couch in the cool blast of a tiny, noisy electric fan, greeted her languidly, close her eyes and was asleep again.
Ellen bathed, changed into a house frock and pulled her mop of hair straight back from her forehead, rigorously taming the rebellious curls at the nape of her neck.
By that time Myra was home from the library. They were having a cold supper. She and Myra prepared it in the kitchen, the coolest room in the apartment because of its northern exposure.
Myra chopped ice for the tea and made thin bread and butter sandwiches. Ellen sliced chilled tomatoes, cucumbers and onions and daintily rubbed the salad bowl with a button of garlic, speared on the end of a fork.
"It's nice to have you back again," Myra observed, smiling at her sister's cautious efforts to avoid being smeared with the garlic.
"Funny, I have the same sort of feeling," Ellen said absently.
"We don't seem to have had any real talks for weeks. It's been too hot for anything."
"Well, it will be September
soon."
"It's hard to believe that it will over snow again and that we'll freeze running for the subway, isn't it?"
Ellen sighed at the thought of chrysanthemums and football games and days when hot chocolate would seem delicious. Incredible tonight that great fires would roar again, that snow would come pelting through the air, that violets would be worn on furs!
"Is everything all right—now?"
Myra asked lightly after a long absorbed silence.
Ellen felt a familiar stab of pain.
"It seems to be," she said carefully. "But I don't know—it may be the heat. I couldn't at the moment shed a tear if I tried. I was fall to sleep."

She poured olive oil and cider vinegar into the yellow mixing bowl and sprinkled paprika with a lavish hand. As she began the blending she remarked with studied carelessness:
"Miss Bowes is back from Europe."
"I saw it in the paper," Myra replied unwillingly. "But you don't care so much to you, honey?"
"Oh, no. I don't care."
Ellen went at the salad dressing with such vigor that the oil and vinegar separated and she had to bind them together with an egg. She made so much noise further conversation was impossible.
But when the dressing was blended and perfect she spoke once more, carelessly this time.
"Steven Barclay asked me to marry him again today."
"That's not news," Myra laughed, covering the awkwardness she felt.
"The news is," Ellen remarked sombrely, "that a single feather would have shoved me over the edge and I'd have accepted."
"There's no sense advising people," Myra began, "but just the same I'm going to put my ear.
I think honestly that women whose husbands love them too much are usually happier than when—well, when it's the other way around,"
she concluded.
"Maybe," Ellen responded briefly.
They decided to eat in the kitchen because the room was cool.
Molly came in presently, dowy-eyed and freshly bathed. Mike burst in from the street, his face red as fire, his hair burnt almost straw colour. Ellen had never seen him look so well. The bicycle had succeeded in doing what all their concerted efforts had been unable to accomplish. That shinning toy had born Mike away from his endless reading.
Tonight he was bubbling with plans to spend the money he had earned running errands for the corner grocer. It was his first job and already he had over $3.
Apparently he meant with this sum to buy out "Tiffany," to deck the women of his household. He was fairly bursting with masculinity and pride as he described to Ellen the necklace he had picked out for her.
"That's grand," she said enthusiastically. "But suppose right now you wash your face and hands and go to bed."

INSUBORDINATION OF PIRACY GUARDS

Before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, the hearing was resumed of the case in which five Shantung constables were charged with insubordination towards their superior officer, Lance Sergeant Kriloff, when he was in charge of the anti-piracy guard of which they were members on the S.S. Sunning on April 5, during a recent trip from Shanghai.

Mr. P. P. J. Wodehouse, C.I.E., Deputy Inspector General of Police, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Horace Lo for the defence.

Called by his solicitor to the witness-box, F. C. Chung Pui-yu stated that on the day in question he was on duty forward, taking up a position outside the Sergeant's cabin, when the latter came out and ordered him to go further forward. He pointed out to the Sergeant that it was raining, but received a repetition of the order and obeyed.

"He went back to his cabin, and I returned to my original position," witness said.

Later, when the Sergeant again saw him back in his old place, he snatched witness's rifle away from him and struck him on the ankle with the barrel (showing the marks of a bruise). He next pushed witness down to the deck below, and witness blew his police whistle.

Mr. Lo here informed the Court that he did not propose to carry the examination further, as what the witness would state thereafter accorded with the evidence of the Sergeant, regarding his arrest and detention.

Mr. Wodehouse, cross-examining witness: Why had not you said anything at all about having received the blow from the rifle on your ankle?

Witness: I had told the European Inspector.

No Report.

Inspector Portallion, called in connexion with this point, said he did not recollect having been told anything to that effect in the report he received from the P.C.

Mr. Wynne-Jones, to witness: What is the idea of blowing the Police whistle?—Because I was struck.

Well, what do you think will happen when you blow the police whistle?—So as to draw the attention of my colleagues.

And what do you think they were going to do?—I wanted them to go up and ask the Sergeant not to strike me.

Why didn't you just go down and ask them to come up?—The Sergeant had no right to dismiss me from my post. I take my orders from the Inspector.

Was that the reason why you refused to leave your post and blew your police whistle?—Yes.

You mean you refuse to take orders from the Sergeant, is it? Now be careful how you reply.

Witness was understood to reply that that was the case.

Re-examined by his solicitor, witness said that besides a feeling of annoyance at having been struck by the Sergeant, he was also fearful—fearful lest the Sergeant should report him at Headquarters.

Found Guilty.

At the close of the case, his Worship found the offence proved in all five cases, although in various degrees.

In the case of P.C. Chung Pui-yu, his Worship found that he had disobeyed a reasonable order given by the Sergeant, and he viewed his act of insubordination in a particularly serious light in view of the fact that he was a member of the anti-piracy guard. He had also a very bad record of service. He would be sentenced to six months hard labour.

In the case of the four other defendants, who were proved to have sided with the first defendant—one of them it was shown actually engaging in a struggle with the Sergeant in an attempt to secure the release of the first man after his arrest and detention on the ship—lighter sentences were passed.

P. C. Kiang Del-ching received three months; P.C. Yuen Ho-ching two months; and P.C. Tau Chai-po and P.C. Hsu Kai-tung a month each. Sentences are to date from April 20, the day of their first appearance before the Court.

Mr. Wodehouse informed the Court that the men would be returned to Wei-Hai-Yei after the completion of their sentences.

WOMEN'S WORLD FOR OUR LADY READERS.

TWO CHARMING COSTUMES FOR THE YOUTHFUL.

There's glamour unmistakably youthful in this new Empire-waisted evening dress for the debutante. It's made of a soft silk that looks like wool, in a bright shade of red. Note the puff sleeves and crisscross strappings on the bodice. The square décolleté also is becoming to the youthful neck.

The out-door miss will be forgiven for doing a bit of swagging in this smart suit that hints of the open spaces where women are sportswomen. Of green frieze, the outfit was created—and posed—by Vera Boren. The turtle-neck sweater is of a flashing orange, the dashing hat of green felt.

NOTES FROM PARIS.

Fashionable Lingerie.

Pearl, mauve, coral, orchid, maize, parchment, dawn, and prawn-pink, these are the colours that are being chosen by the Paris lingerie makers for the latest lingerie acts this season. Lovely colours all of them. When you are buying your new lingerie remember that the great idea is to wear as little as possible. If you don't care for sets of different colours have half a dozen beautifully-made little garments in thick crepe-de-chine of the shade that suits you best.

At the commencement of the season, this is the problem which men and girls have to consider. This year, a Paris florist has invented, to wear with slimy evening dresses, a combination of the feather and the flower. Long, single ostrich-plume feathers with a spray of pale green orchids or some other chosen flower posed on the quill centre, are one of the novel design-seen. This fashion also meets the problem of matching the bouquet of flowers in their own natural colours to some of the different fabric-shades of this season. The feather can be dyed or chosen of exactly the same shade as the silk, tulle, or chiffon gown, and the softening effect of flowers is introduced with success. Bouquets are coming into fashion again to wear with evening dresses. They are by no means large, and are made up in a round, slightly pointed shape. For a fair girl in a white tulle frock, a bouquet of lilies of the valley is a lovely finish.

LEMON PUDDING.

Mix together 8 oz. breadcrumbs, 2 oz. flour, 4 oz. finely-chopped suet, and 4 oz. sugar, stir in the yolks of 2 eggs, well-beaten, the juice of 2 lemons, the rinds of the lemons finely grated, and milk enough to form a stiff, yet thorough-

LOVELY SKIN.

From experience I have come to the conclusion that it is wiser not to use water to wash the face, owing to its drying tendencies. Instead, I "wash" with cream, removing both cream and dirt with witch hazel lotion. When my skin is perfectly clean I use the same cream again for nourishing.

My make-up is lightly applied, and I am glad to see that light make-up is to be fashionable again. I choose my lipstick and rouge with care, to harmonise with my fair colouring. But I avoid late nights and too many engagements during the day in order to keep thoroughly fit for work.

ly moistened mixture. Turn into a greased mould and steam from 2 to 3 hours. If the yolks are to be kept overnight, cover with a little milk.

SENATOR WANTS IT UP TO TREATY LIMITS

Washington, May 5. A navy "strong enough to keep the United States out of war" was demanded by Senator O. M. Hale at a sitting of the Naval Commission of the Senate to-day when he opened his campaign to pass a Bill authorising the building up of the navy to the treaty limits. He added that the passage of the Bill would strengthen the hands of the United States delegates at Geneva.

Referring to the "melancholy spectacle in the Far East," Senator Hale said: "Treaties in which we placed such implicit trust have utterly failed in their immediate effect, and with their prestige damaged, they cannot be relied on with any degree of safety in the future."

The United States navy to-day was far weaker relatively, than before the Washington Conference, he said.

Senator Hale warned Japan that the United States undertaking not to strengthen the naval fortification on the Pacific was based on the treaties guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China and the open door policy. —Reuter's American Service.

THE Y'S MEN'S CLUB.

PRELIMINARY MEETING OF MEMBERS

The thirty members of the Hongkong Y's Men's Club met yesterday at Lane Crawford's Restaurant and completed the details of organisation before the inauguration meeting to be held to-morrow night. Mr. Tan Eng-hoo, president of the Club, was in the chair, and Mr. Wm. Yinson, president of the Shanghai Y's Men's Club and member of the Advisory Board of the International Association of Y's Men's Clubs, addressed the members upon the spirit of Y'sdom and what is implied by its motto "Fellowship Culture-Service."

An interesting discussion ensued, concluding with Dr. Arthur Woo, second vice-president, congratulating the organiser of the Club, Mr. Yinson Lee, upon the successful formation of the Y's Men's Club of Hongkong.

Mr. R. C. H. Lim, first vice-president, on behalf of the Social Committee, announced the final arrangements for the inaugural dinner to be held at Lane Crawford's Restaurant, Exchange Building, to-morrow night at 7.30. There will be dancing, and a musical programme. Members are asked to bring their friends, including ladies.

PERFECTING THE ART OF KILLING.

Whilst the World Disarmament Conference at Geneva is still in session, an alarming note has been struck by the almost simultaneous publication of details concerning a number of ingenious warlike inventions. Pride of place must be given to the new German super-bullet. Its inventor, Herr Gerlick, claims that it will pierce a half-inch armour-plate at a distance of sixty yards. A winged device increases the normal muzzle velocity. One report declares that the bullet, fired from a rifle, will "mutilate horribly" while the invention is said to be adaptable to anti-aircraft guns and other artillery. The British War Office has been experimenting with a light weight machine-gun, of the Vickers-Berthier type. It is possible that, in the future, every soldier will be equipped with some such quick-firing weapon in place of a rifle. There is also a Danish invention, the Madsen machine rifle, which is now under consideration. An automatic rifle is already in use in the United States army.

Very little is heard about the experiments in the use of poison gas and chemical warfare, which annually cost Great Britain almost as much as does the League of Nations; and, of course, this sort of research work is not being carried on in one country alone. There are signs that even some of the people with interests in armaments firms are becoming uneasy at the prostitution of science for purposes of destruction. At the annual meeting of a well-known Sheffield firm, recently, mention was made of a new armour-piercing shell. A shareholder dared to lift his voice in protest. "People are not always going to kill each other," he said. "I do hope you will turn more attention to the making of useful things, such as rails, steel doors and steel ornaments." The post-war attempt to eliminate brute force from the arbitrament of international disputes is based not so much upon fear as upon considerations of moral standards and common sense. Yet it is certain that all these new inventions, if ever they should be used on a large scale, would make any Great War of the future a nightmare not only to the armed forces but also to the civil populations. Certain eminent authorities have claimed that the best way to abolish war is to make the weapons available so horrible that no nation will dare to precipitate hostilities. These arguments were used before 1914, but nevertheless the Great War came. The truth seems to be that the more terrible weapons are placed at the disposal of the Powers concerned, the greater is the fear, the suspicion and the tension created in their mutual relations. A nation may easily be tempted to fight in the hope of getting in a deadly blow first and thus snatching the victory. While the League of Nations is struggling to substitute peaceful methods for the settlement of disputes and to get a sound scheme for the all-round reduction of armaments generally accepted, the old traditions die hard. In the race which is going on between the forces making for peace and those making for war, the latter have a long start. Centuries of adverse influence cannot be eliminated in the short space of twelve years. Public opinion, exerted on the right side, can make the struggle less uneven, and enable nations to perfect the art of peace as they have perfected the art of war.

British Currency Policy

A stampede back to the pound sterling would be just as embarrassing to the Bank of England and the British Government as the stampede away from it last autumn. Hence there is probably a good deal of truth in the New York report that the pound would have risen at least ten gold cents on Wednesday but for the depressing activities of British agents. Speculative upturns do not afford the solid basis that the Bank of England obviously requires before deciding the rate at which to stabilise the currency. If foreign money goes to Britain solely for the sake of an exchange profit, it can leave the country, as we found in August and September, for the same reason. And it is apt to go as it comes—on wings. Therefore, the Bank of England is apparently trying to offset the effect of the speculative purchases of sterling. It is buying foreign currencies and already, according to some authorities, the Bank has accumulated tidy balances in foreign markets as the result of these transactions. The development is a case of history repeating itself. France adopted a similar policy prior to the post-war stabilisation of the franc, or, in other words, the return to the gold standard. Much of her financial power may be traced to the volume of foreign money poured into the country in the speculative hope that on the advent of stabilisation it would be found to have increased in value. It didn't. France retained the foreign offerings in bank balances abroad, stabilised the franc at fifth of its pre-war parity with gold, and enjoyed the losses sustained by the speculators. The French banks did not move the money home after stabilisation. They let it draw interest until last year, when repatriation started, helping in part to cause those financial stresses which one financial centre after another underwent, stresses from which they seem to be rapidly recovering. But part of the recovery is due to the return

Admitting a charge of returning from banishment having been deported for a period of ten years in January last, a Chinese who appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning was given eight months' hard labour. The defendant had been previously convicted twice for breach of the Opium Ordinance and once for larceny.

It being anticipated that the Victoria Gap murder case now before the Supreme Court and in which Mr. R. E. Lindell is engaged will be finished before that date, Mr. Wynne Jones at the Central Police Court this morning fixed Thursday afternoon for the resumption of the Police Court trial of Tseng Kwok-yau, charged with instigating the murder of George Fung at Village Road on March 24.

CONTRACTOR'S COOLIE FINED

For carrying a parcel of gunpowder and fuse in Water Street without properly labelling the packet "Dangerous," a contractor's coolie who appeared before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Police Court this morning, was fined $10, his Worship remarking that this type of offence was not a very common one.

It was stated that the defendant's master had a licence for a magazine at Causeway Bay and the defendant had taken out the gunpowder to blast stones at West Point.

of those very same floating balances that helped to cause the mischief. Are they going to lay the foundation for some future exchange panic? Too much of the world's money is used simply to shift back and forth between financial centres. In June, 1931, at the beginning of the financial panic, which spread like a prairie fire over Europe and finally over the Atlantic to the United States, it was computed that the capital lent on short-term account to foreign borrowers amounted to $500,000,000, as compared with a pre-war average of $250,000,000. If it is to be employed abroad at all, it should be sunk in more permanent enterprises than demand balances in foreign banks and other liquid assets.

BENEATH OUR FASCINATING VENEER

By "OBSERVATORE"

SO much has been written of the beauty of Hongkong by night—of the Peak with its myriad lights silhouetted against a star-besprinkled background, of blue vastness, that the critic is generally lost in admiration for the superficial, not pausing to think of another aspect—Hongkong at night beneath its fascinating veneer!

It may be urged that if the water appears to be crystal clear why stir up the mud? But perhaps some good may be achieved by discovering a means to eliminate some of the social slits—the sordidness that exists beneath a seemingly enchanting exterior.

With the unpleasant intention of seeking the truth, of delving beneath the surface, the writer recently explored a district within a few hundred square yards of Pedder Street, in the westward direction, and his experiences were nauseating in the extreme. Strolling along Queen's Road, he decided to probe behind the scenes of so-called "Massage" establishments shortly after midnight.

In the majority of cases, illuminated signs at the foot of a darkened staircase indicated the whereabouts of these places, but after entering one, guided or touts appeared and offered to conduct the adventurer to other dens where "very nice massage girls" might be engaged!

MODUS OPERANDI.

One interesting discovery was made, which may be mentioned before attempting to describe the general modus operandi practised inside these dens, and that was that in several instances, warning of the arrival of a visitor was given, usually by a bell, from a concealed point where watchers were evidently stationed. The mere act of passing through the mysterious portal was sufficient to set the warning system going, which in itself sufficed to cast doubt on the bona fides of the establishment within. On ascending the gloomy, evil smelling staircases, scuffling feet and muffled voices were heard above, and by the time the investigator entered the actual premises, two or three girls came forward and solicited patronage of the establishment. Cubicles were the rule, and most were merely formed by a running partition, divided at about every six or seven feet, the entrance being curtained. The open space between the partition and the ceiling seemed to have been forgotten by the hidden inmates, for whispering voices were invariably audible.

In each case the rule adopted was to ask for beer and food, and it must be said that, in the majority of instances, the request met with refusal, but other houses were not so insistent, and beer was forthcoming! "Very good massage" was urged, but the girls who appeared for business were in themselves hardly calculated to impress their ability in that direction. Bare-legged, thin and in some cases looking positively wan and ill. Others hiding their tragic mien by the means of face paint crudely and pathetically applied. Some houses made little secret of their trade, and brazenly made sickening suggestions, almost pleading for their revolting calling.

Within practically a stone's throw of Pedder Street, these conditions obtained, and the observer shuddered in amazement that such a veritable undercurrent of loathsomeness could exist. But exist it does, and the pitiful part appeared to be that men wearing the King's uniform should be discovered in several of these haunts. It may be the ease with which drink can be obtained, because even when it was refused, it was felt that the refusal was prompted by suspicion that the customer was possibly a spy.

ENLIGHTENING TOUR.

This sadly enlightening tour was continued until about 1 a.m., but even at that hour, there appeared to be little reluctance to admit callers. In fact, the later the hour, the more pronounced the importance of staying! Truly a revolting state of affairs, and it surely must be clear that genuine massage establishments do not keep open in the early hours of the morning. As mentioned above, several houses were without outward and visible sign of their existence, and if the guides had not been employed, no amount of seeking could discover them.

The impression gained with considerable conviction was that massage establishments should all be registered, and proof given that they are genuine. It is fully realised that there are many genuine people engaged in this useful profession, at which some Eastern races excel, and in fairness to them as decent and useful citizens, those who bring discredit to that calling should be severely dealt with. They represent a social sore in Hongkong that needs drastic remedy.

WOMAN'S WORST ENEMY

By L. C. MOORE.

MANY a man who would like to be a millionaire won't take the trouble to save sixpence.

In exactly the same way, many a woman who would like to feel that she and her sisters are every bit as good as men will not take the simplest and most obvious steps towards achieving that equality.

Every mother imbuces her daughter with the idea that she must give service to men.

If there are two brothers who find it necessary to perform some domestic duty, they will either toss for it or tackle the job together. But if these two brothers have a sister they will take it for granted that she will do it.

She will be commended by her female relatives for doing so, in spite of the fact that she puts in just as many hours at the office as they do, and probably earns as much money.

Not only is this inequitable, but it is impossible to imagine anything more calculated to keep woman in her place as the servant.

Let me make it quite clear that I am not suggesting that women ought to leave domestic duties alone. If a wife takes on the running of her home as a whole-time job, and prefers that to going out to the City, then she doesn't prejudice her striving for equality in the least.

She is merely doing one kind of specialised work, while her husband does another, and they can respect each other. But when she fetches and carries for him, or brushes his hat, she helps to keep her sex just a notch or two below his.

There is another way in which women hamper themselves in their attempts to achieve equality. A bachelor friend came to dinner with us the other evening, bringing with him a girl he wanted us to meet.

When they had gone we sat in judgment, and approved—with one important reservation on my part. The girl seemed so utterly unintelligent.

My wife pointed out scornfully that my knowledge of women must be slight because the feigning of ignorance is one of the oldest tricks of the sex.

Well that may be good applied psychology for the purpose of husband-catching but it is the wrong way to make a man feel that the girl is on an equal footing with him.

If she sets out to win the man by deliberately pretending an intellectual inferiority, it is hardly to be wondered at if he accepts her at her own valuation after marriage, and smiles when she talks about equality.

And finally, woman must learn that so long as she unashamedly admits that she does want to catch a man, she will never reach that equality she desires.

TWO DANGEROUS DRIVERS

FINES OF TWENTY DOLLARS

The drivers of two motor vehicles, summoned for driving in a manner dangerous to the public, were each fined $20 on their appearance before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning, the defendants in each instance having clean records.

Inspector R. H. E. Marks prosecuted a driver of the Ngn Chenug Garage, the defendant admitting having driven motor car No. 3272 in a dangerous manner in Pokfulam Road, near the Hongkong University.

The officer informed his Worship that he was travelling as a passenger in his own car going from Hongkong towards Aberdeen and when turning the corner just after the junction of Pokfulam and Lionham Roads, the defendant, who was driving another car in the opposite direction, was travelling at such a high speed, estimated to be about 15 miles an hour, that he was unable to take the corner properly. As soon as he saw the other car, the defendant applied all brakes and skidded across the road, narrowly missing the police officer's car.

Against the driver of a public motor car Sergeant Wynne alleged that he drove in a manner dangerous to the public in Des Voeux Road Central near Rungway Street. When first seen by the officer the defendant's car was stationary. The accused started off travelling from west to east and then turned round, to travel from east to west, narrowly missing a collision with another car. He continued and knocked down a Chinese who was carrying fish. The man was taken to hospital, where he was detained for two days.

SHIPPING CAPTAIN FINED

Captain John Jacobsen, master of the Danish vessel Gustav Dierichsen, was charged before Mr. T. W. H. Hoggood, Assistant Harbour Master, at the Marine Court this morning, under the Suppression of Piracy Regulations for having commenced a voyage at a time not previously notified and not allowed by the Inspector General of Police on May 3.

The accused pleaded guilty to the charge, and a fine of $50 was imposed.

Sub-Inspector Elston, who prosecuted, said the vessel cleared at 7 p.m. on May 3 with 300 passengers for Swatow. The police completed their search at that time, but the vessel did not actually sail until three hours later, and it was possible for bad characters to board the ship during that time.

THE WORLD AND THE POUND

"OUGHT TO BE WORTH $4.35"

VICTORY OF PAPER

(By Professor Gustav Cassel.)

The recent rapid appreciation of the more important paper currencies appears to have caused considerable surprise everywhere. Yet what has happened could have been foreseen. After England and other countries abandoned the gold standard last autumn the currencies of these countries were grossly undervalued. Distrust of all paper currency, which is only the other side of the gold superstition, led people to dispose of the new paper currencies at prices which stood in no relation to their internal purchasing power. But there is no sound basis for any such undervaluation, and it may, therefore, cease any day.

Even the slightest improvement in external conditions may produce a radical change in the valuation of currencies. Once the conviction has taken root that there is to be a permanent substantial rise in the international valuation of paper currencies, speculators are quick to take advantage of the position, and experience has shown that in such cases rates of exchange may be forced up very rapidly.

When England abandoned the gold standard she had considerable short-term debts abroad, which ex-erced great pressure on her currency. On the other hand, she also had long-term claims in foreign countries for incomparably larger amounts, and, assuming rational management, it could only be a question of time for the significance of this fact to manifest itself in a practical form. The demand for sterling had to come, and the international value of sterling, even after some fluctuation, will rise to a level corresponding to its purchasing power parity. Even the probability of such a rise has been exploited for purposes of speculation, which has somewhat forestalled events. That, obviously, is the development which we are now witnessing. The world has regained confidence in the pound and is buying sterling in anticipation of an imminent rise. It is only natural that such a movement should be followed by a rise in other undervalued paper currencies.

The Paper Currencies.

It is necessary, at present, to form an approximately precise idea of the real value of the various paper currencies. For this purpose, the internal purchasing power of the paper currencies must be compared with that of the gold currencies; in other words, we have to calculate the purchasing power parity of the various currencies. In making this calculation it will be well to take as the starting point the three years from 1926 to 1928 following upon England's reversion to the gold standard, a period that was not affected by the present crisis. A comparison of the average wholesale price level in each country within this period with the corresponding price level in January, 1922, will show, firstly, that the internal purchasing power of gold currencies, as well as of paper currencies, had substantially risen. In the case of the English pound, for instance, purchasing power, according to the official index figures, rose from 100 to 135.

That is a fact that deserves the closest attention. To-day it is widely held that the paper currencies have experienced a substantial fall in purchasing power—that the pound is worth not more than 11s. as far as internal purchasing power is concerned. In reality, however, that is not so. The purchasing power of the paper currencies has also risen, though that of the gold currencies has risen still more. In the case of the dollar, according to Fisher's Index, the increase of internal purchasing power has been from 100 to 151.

The Swedish Krone.

What, then, is the value of the paper currencies on the basis of their internal purchasing power as compared with the internal purchasing power of the dollar? A simple calculation will show that, for instance, the Swedish krone ought to have been quoted in January, 1932, at Kr. 4.17 to the dollar, whereas the actual average dollar rate for that month was Kr. 5.22. Thus, in American currency, the value of the krone ought to have been 25 cents, whereas the above-mentioned average rate is only equivalent to 19.15 cents per krone. In the case of English currency the position is approximately the same. On the basis of its purchasing power parity the pound ought to have been worth 4.35 dollars.

Naturally, these purchasing power parities cannot be expected to represent exact comparative values, which cannot really exist at a time of abnormal movements of capital and still more abnormal restrictions in international commerce. None the less, these calculations provide a fair basis for estimating the real values of the paper currencies, and indubitably show how grossly undervalued. To compensate for this undervaluation, we must be prepared for the pound and the krone to rise to the figures given here.

KOMOR'S EXHIBITION.

DELIGHTFUL PICTURES BY JAPANESE ARTISTS

Spring brings again the bi-annual picture exhibition at Messrs. Komor and Komor's art rooms, this year in their new premises, Chater Road, next door to Messrs. Kelly and Walsh; and if possible this year it surpasses the former exhibitions in variety and art.

Pictures costing from about three dollars with attractive mounts, finished by masters like Kobayashi, Tani or Terrauchi, make beautiful presents and perfect ornaments for the home. Of the larger pictures by Terrauchi, No. 2 "Odawara," No. 5 Numadzu, and No. 10 Seascape stand out as works of art; in fact every exhibit should be mentioned for all are beautiful. Kiwazaki, Tani, and Kobayashi excel in their work this year.

The new premises of Messrs. Komor and Komor adapt themselves better than the former ones for the purpose, and the impression one gets when entering this "Aladdin's Cave" of wonderful art is bound to be pleasing.

The exhibition remains open for a week only, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and if one is a lover of art one cannot do better than visit the art rooms of Komor and Komor in York Building.

SWEDISH HOUSE OF NOBLES

PICTURESQUE MEETING SCENE.

Stockholm, Mar. 30. The Swedish House of Nobles, the ancient national body of Swedish noblemen, recently held their solemn assembly in the "House of Knights," known as the finest specimen of old Stockholm architecture. The heads of the noble families gathered in the beautiful memorial hall, the walls of which are covered with the coats of arms of the noble families, and opened their meeting by paying reverence to the oldest and most aristocratic of Sweden's families, the Brahes, recently extinct by the death of the last Count Brahe, which has played such a prominent part in the history of Sweden.

Before the reforms of 1866, the House of Nobles acted as the Swedish House of Lords. It is quite a wealthy institution, for its total assets now amount to a sum of over nineteen million kronor (£1,055,556).

The House also has no fewer than 210 benevolent funds with a combined capital of about 1.3 million kronor (£72,222), enabling the directors of the House to pay out annual stipends and scholarships to children in need of financial support for their education as well as pensions to widows and orphans.

Calculations provide a fair basis for estimating the real values of the paper currencies, and indubitably show how grossly undervalued. To compensate for this undervaluation, we must be prepared for the pound and the krone to rise to the figures given here.

Of course, it is impossible to take into consideration here new factors which may still arise. The present position of world economy is so uncertain that it is not possible to make precise forecasts with regard to the future. Anything may happen while the nations refuse to make use of their intelligence. At the same time there is an overwhelming probability of a change in price movements in the gold countries. The increase of the supply of currency in the United States may easily raise price levels by 10 per cent., which would immediately restore the old purchasing power parity between the dollar and the krone to the figures given here.

Such a development is not without danger. Above all, restoration of the old gold parity of the paper currencies might lead to a return to the gold standard. That would be a hasty step, and certainly unfortunate. So long as the stability of gold cannot be relied upon, and so long as there is no assurance that the world's gold reserves will in future be exploited more rationally than hitherto, a return to the gold standard would be worse than a step in the dark; it would be a retrogression to an unworthy dependence on incalculable economic influences and political factors.

As a matter of fact, the paper currency countries have already won a great victory by proving all over the world the possibility of deliberately controlling the purchasing power of paper currency. They must not surrender this advantage, but, on the contrary, must exploit it in favour of the interests of the world as a whole—that is to say, a monetary policy which ensures the greatest measure of stability to the general commodity price level.

TREASURE HUNT.

SUCCESSFUL AND EXCITING FEATURE CONCLUDES

After five weeks of excitement for the "hounds," the Radio Treasure Hunt, organised by Arnold's Radio Services with the co-operation of ZBW, was brought to a successful conclusion last evening, when the final clue was announced at 6 p.m., the hounds being allowed two hours in which to arrive at their final destination.

There was a large gathering of hounds at Arnold's Radio Show-room in Gloucester Building when the first half of the final clue was received over the air. The second half was picked up later and finally the hounds finished at the Arcade.

The result will be announced in the local Press as soon as possible.

SECRETARY ADVANCES HOOVER DOCTRINE

New York, May 5. An important pronouncement on foreign policy, especially in the Far East was made by Mr. Castle, acting Secretary of State, in a speech last night. He denounced the idea of a boycott against any other nation, and severely criticized the concept force on which, he held the League of Nations was founded, and advanced as a new keystone of international law the "Hoover Doctrine," that no territorial gains in violation of the Kellogg anti-war pact should be recognised.—Reuter's America Service.

If you get INDIGESTION

If you sometimes have flatulence, uncomfortable "fullness" after meals or other forms of indigestion, don't just wait for it to "pass off." Digestive trouble is nearly always due to excess acid which not only interrupts digestion but ferments food, attacks the stomach lining and, if unchecked, may eventually cause ulcers. Avoid this danger and promptly relieve discomfort by taking a little "Bisurated" Magnesia after meals. Excess acid is instantly neutralised; fermentation stops; gas is dispersed; pain disappears and your inflamed stomach lining is soothed and healed. When buying "Bisurated" Magnesia always see the oval "Bismag" sign on the carton.

COLONY FORTUNATE

The annual meeting of the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce yesterday was notable for a review of trade conditions by the Chairman, the Hon. Mr. W. H. Bell, who dealt, inter alia, with the silver question, stabilisation and the future outlook.

The Secretary having read the notice convening the meeting, the Chairman said:

Gentlemen, the report and accounts of the Chamber have been in your hands for some days, and I rise to move their adoption.

Before touching upon some of the important questions which have been considered by your Committee during the past year, I am sure you would wish me to express, on your behalf, the regret which we feel at the losses the Hongkong business community has sustained by death since our last annual meeting.

Sir Newton Stubb had not resided in the Colony for some years, but he was well-known to most of us, and through the London Office of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank continued in close touch with the Colony, whose interests he always had at heart. He was for years a valued member of your General Committee. His death is a great loss to the Bank and to his many friends.

We have also to deplore the untimely deaths of Mr. W. A. Hannibal, Mr. S. A. Arthur and Mr. M. Manuk, the last-named a victim of the present epidemic of meningitis. Mr. Hannibal helped us greatly in matters connected with export trade; Mr. Arthur also served us well on the Export Committee, and Mr. Manuk's special knowledge of trade between Australia and Hongkong was willingly placed at our disposal.

World Trade Depression.

A year ago world-wide trade depression was the topic of most speeches from the chair at annual meetings of Chambers of Commerce and Banks, and, as you know, the downward movement has continued without interruption, culminating in a state of financial depression and chaos which is almost unprecedented. The piling up in one or two creditor countries of vast hoards of gold, by refusal to accept payment in goods, has gravely disorganised international trade. One of the results has been that Great Britain has been forced off the Gold Standard, and this has been followed by many other countries going off the Gold Standard voluntarily. Conditions are still too obscure for me to feel justified in risking any prophecy as regards the future.

It is obvious, however, that the burden of debts arising out of the European War has become intolerable and must be adjusted speedily if revolution and consequent ruin is to be avoided. It has still to be seen how long it will be before stern necessity compels the nations to face their difficulties in a spirit of co-operation.

The Silver Question.

We in Hongkong are too far removed from the great centres of government to be able to wield much, if any, influence towards the settlement of these urgent international problems, though your Committee supported the British Chamber of Commerce in Shanghai in requesting the China Association to make representations to the British Government in favour of international action on the whole question of silver, particularly as affecting China trade and the country's ability to meet its obligations.

You will see from the annual report that we have also given consideration to the recommendations of the Hongkong Currency Commission. Supporters of stabilisation of the Hongkong currency in relation to gold had the ground cut from under their feet when Great Britain left the standard to which they desired to attach our currency. You will no doubt have read the Committee's views on this subject, and I will not take up your time by going into these somewhat technical matters in any detail. Our main conclusion, with which I feel sure the whole mercantile community will be in agreement, was to support the Commission's view that Hongkong is economically part of China and must remain on a silver standard so long as China does; that while stabilisation would facilitate the conduct of certain classes of business within the Colony, it would gravely prejudice the large import and export trade of South China, conducted or financed through Hongkong, which is the sheet-anchor of the Colony's prosperity, and would therefore affect injuriously many other branches of business.

Cause for Satisfaction.

In 1931, a year of world-wide trade depression, Hongkong imports were valued at 737 million dollars and exports at 642 million dollars. The Statistical Department gives an estimate that, in respect of imports, this represents a fall of a little over 20 per cent. as compared with 1924, and in the case of exports of approximately 30 per cent. This can in the nature of things, be only a rough calculation, but if it is anything like correct we have some cause for satisfaction.

As Hongkong residents return from furloughs spent in many different parts of the globe, and each pours forth the depressing story of conditions as he found them in the particular country visited, one cannot help entertaining feelings of thankfulness that Hongkong's peculiar position in world economy seems to protect it from the worst effects of "the economic blizzard". As an entrepot at the doorway of South China, and as a place of security adjacent to a great country in which, unhappily, insecurity is all too prevalent, Hongkong is bound to be, even in the worst times, the centre of a certain minimum of world trade. To those of us whose interests are here, that is a cause for thankfulness.

I must digress for a moment to tell you that some of my colleagues consider that I am rather optimistic as regards the position of the port of Hongkong. I would emphasize that I am comparing the position of Hongkong with that of the rest of the world, and more because I say that we have not been so badly off I do not mean to imply that business has been good—far from it. It has been very difficult indeed, but it does not appear to have been quite so bad as in other places.

As regards the future, Hongkong is equally dependent with the rest of the world on a prompt adjustment of War Debts, to which I have alluded earlier in my speech, and must feel the results, whether for good or ill, of the Economic Conference to be held at Lausanne before very long. In the meantime caution combined with the strictest economy should be exercised by all, including the Government.

Trade Statistics.

Last July your Committee circulated members requesting their co-operation in making prompt and accurate declarations of imports and exports to the Statistical Department of the Hongkong Government in order that records of local trade might be made reasonably accurate. This step was taken in consequence of a report by the Superintendent of Imports and Exports that, since the re-establishment of the Department, a monthly average of 4,000 reminders and queries was necessitated by incorrect returns, or failure to make any returns at all. The year 1931 is the first since 1924 in respect of which complete figures are available, and, from now onwards, records will be correspondingly more valuable.

I am glad to learn that the number of queries dealt with by the Statistical Department has been considerably reduced of late, and trust that this indication of a general desire to co-operate will be maintained.

Shipping Requirements.

Work of considerable importance to Shipping in the Far East has been accomplished in connexion with the Simla Conference. The problem was the modification of Board of Trade Rules to suit local requirements. As stated in the Chairman's speech last year, the Chamber of Commerce has had the invaluable assistance of a Technical Committee which examined in great detail two voluminous books of rules, and proposed a number of amendments. Early in 1931 the Committee sat in almost daily conference for five hours a day with two representatives of the Government Marine Surveyors (Mr. Lambert and Mr. Swan), of whose helpful collaboration acknowledgment is certainly due.

As a result of this preliminary work, and of further conferences held in Singapore, the Official and Unofficial members of the Hongkong delegation to the Simla Conference went there as a united body. Further, they had a close understanding with the Straits Settlements and F. M. S. delegates, as well as with the representatives of the Netherlands, East Indies. The advantage of this was that the Far Eastern point of view was more effectively presented. Although we did not get all we wanted, we helped to see that the Rules set a fair and reasonable standard for the deck passenger or pilgrim trades with which the Conference was specially concerned. You will permit me to repeat the thanks already expressed in our Report to the Chamber of Commerce delegates, Mr. F. W. James and Mr. A. MacIndoe, and I am sure they will wish me to acknowledge the skill with which the Honourable the Harbour Master led the Hongkong delegation.

Revised Rules.

Following the Simla Conference, the Government Marine Surveyors have prepared, or are preparing, revised rules for local shipping. The work done in this connection before the Conference has not by any means been wasted. There is reason to believe that in Hongkong we shall be able very largely to achieve "legislation by agreement" thanks to the spade work already put in.

Your Committee has asked the Government to reconsider its policy in regard to the imposition of duties on perfumery and essences. It is reported to us by merchants that higher prices, consequent on the duties, have seriously curtailed the demand for imported toilet articles. Sales of raw materials to the local perfumery industry are much diminished. Some local factories have moved from Hongkong to Canton to avoid the Chinese import duties, but it is likely that their decision has been also influenced by the imposition of taxation here.

Following our representations, the Government has revised the method of calculating the duties, but has not yet seen its way to remove them altogether. The Chamber has pressed strongly for this on the ground that any interference with the freedom of the Port of Hongkong is to be deprecated.

Piece Goods Dispute.

Questions now exercising the minds of merchants interested in piece goods and sundries were discussed here so recently as not to require further detailed reference on this occasion. A conference has since taken place with representatives of the Chinese Piece Goods Guild, and their criticisms of the present standard contract have been handed in. Acting under a resolution passed by the General Meeting of Importers on 14th April, a special committee has been appointed by the Chamber of Commerce to consider the question of revising the Chamber's Standard Form and, if possible, bringing it more closely into line with the Manchester and Bradford "China Contract."

At the same time the Guild's views will receive careful consideration, and it is hoped that it may be found possible to make the Chamber's contract a standard for all textiles.

Messrs. W. Brackenridge, L. J. Davies and K. S. Morrison—all gentlemen possessing the necessary knowledge and experience—have kindly consented to form the Special Committee. We wish them every success in their difficult task of reconciling divergent views.

The Language School.

The number of students on the roll of the Language School during 1931 was 31, which is fairly satisfactory, although a smaller number than in the previous year. A new text-book, written by the Rev. H. R. Wells, was adopted about a year ago, and is found to facilitate more rapid acquisition of the language. This is important, because transfers to other ports make it difficult for students to "stay the course" if it is a long one. In fact, our chief difficulty is the withdrawal of students, for various reasons, before they have obtained a certificate of proficiency. The Rev. H. R. Wells, Director of the School, will return in the Autumn, and I am sure that under his charge a high standard of instruction will continue to be maintained.

It has been suggested that a Mandarin Section should be formed in connexion with the School, and that instruction in Mandarin should form the basis for Cantonese or other dialects. The great majority of the students attending the School are required by their firms for work in Hongkong, Kwangtung or Kwangsi, in which districts Cantonese is the only dialect which is universally used by the Chinese business community. The Committee takes the view that the period of tuition would be too long if students had first to qualify in Mandarin before taking up the study of Cantonese. I am afraid we should lose the support which has been built up with great difficulty. Further, it is almost impossible to obtain qualified teachers in Mandarin and students would have no opportunity for daily practice in the use of the dialect. In response to a circular to members, only one firm favoured the formation of a Mandarin class, and no further steps were taken in the matter.

The Accounts.

The Chamber continues to subscribe to Reuters service of commercial telegrams on behalf of nearly thirty members, amongst whom the cost is distributed. The charge per subscriber is reasonable and a reduction could be made if additional subscribers were enrolled. The Secretary will be glad to supply particulars to members who are interested.

survey certificate fees—is approximately the same as in the previous year. Expenses were incurred during the year in connexion with the removal of the offices of the Chamber from the first to the second floor of Chartered Bank Building, part of the cost of which falls in 1931 and part in 1932. Exchange compensation to the staff extended over the whole year, as compared with six months during the previous year, and secretarial expenses are correspondingly heavier. As was anticipated by the Chairman at the annual meeting last year, the general reserve has had to be drawn upon to meet this additional expenditure. Unless the dollar appreciates to something like its former value, it is possible that this reserve—now standing at $78,000—will have to be further drawn upon.

There are a number of substantial firms in the Colony who are not members of the Chamber. We should welcome their support as an aid towards balancing the budget, and more particularly, for the reason that a Chamber of Commerce, to be truly representative, should include all the principal firms in its area.

I have now much pleasure in proposing that the report and accounts as presented be adopted, and when this proposal has been seconded I will endeavour to answer any questions to the best of my ability.

Seconded's Speech.

Mr. G. Miskin said: Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen,—Before seconding the adoption of the report and accounts, I should like to associate myself with the Chairman's expression of regret at the loss which the community has sustained by the death of Sir Newton Stubb, Mr. Hannibal, Mr. Arthur and Mr. Manuk.

In reviewing the past commercial year, the Chairman has just referred to the Colony's comparative immunity from the "economic blizzard" which still blows in other parts of the world. He attributes this comparative immunity to Hongkong's geographical and political situation. There is, I think, a third factor, which has played possibly an even more important part in our protection. Owing to the silver backing to our currency, and the fact that silver has fluctuated more or less to the same extent as other commodities in terms of gold, we have experienced a comparatively even level of commodity values and have consequently largely escaped the disastrous fall in prices which has dislocated trade in gold standard countries.

The great amount of business which the General Committee of the Chamber transacts in the course of a year is made apparent by a perusal of the annual report. I am sure members of the Chamber thoroughly appreciate all the time and thought which the Committee devote to the general interest. I remember that the last time I was invited to second the adoption of the report and accounts was in 1920, and in verifying this fact I was impressed by the improved form in which the report is presented to us nowadays as compared with that of twelve years ago.

Tribute to Secretary.

It is convenient to have the records compressed (as they now are), rather than that members should have to wade through reams of correspondence (as they had to do in the old days) and pick out the points for themselves. We are much indebted to the Secretary for this reform; also for the work he has done in a particularly strenuous year. Mr. Key asks me to add an acknowledgment of the valuable assistance he has had from Mr. Price, especially during the time he (Mr. Key) was laid up with diphtheria.

I am sure you will support me, Gentlemen, in expressing our thanks to the Chairman, Committee and Secretariat for the good work which they have done on our behalf during the past year.

I have much pleasure in seconding the adoption of the report and accounts as presented.

The motion was carried unanimously.

General Committee Elected.

On the proposition of Mr. L.C.F. Bellamy, seconded by Mr. H. M. Gregory, the following General Committee was re-elected for the ensuing year, the Chairman explaining that no further nominations had been received:

The Hon. Mr. W. H. Bell, the Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson, Mr. P. S. Cassidy, Mr. V. M. Grayburn, Mr. M. T. Johnson, Mr. C. C. Knight, Mr. Paul Lauder, Mr. J. A. Plummer, Mr. A. L. Shields, Mr. M. St. J. Walsh and Mr. J. P. Warren.

At a meeting of the General Committee, held after the annual meeting had concluded, Mr. J. A. Plummer was elected Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce for the ensuing year, and Mr. C. C. Knight was elected Vice-Chairman.

Messrs. Percy Smith, Seth and Fleming were elected auditors for the ensuing year on the proposition of the Chairman seconded by Mr. J. Orniston.

The Chairman proposed the confirmation of the election by the General Committee of the following members since the last annual meeting:

Messrs. Arnold and Company Limited, Messrs. Brandt and Company, Messrs. H. Connell and Company and Messrs. F. Feld and Company Limited.

This was seconded by Mr. T. A. Mitchell and was carried.

This concluded the business before the meeting which then terminated.

The Attendance.

The attendance was as follows: The Chairman of the Chamber, the Hon. Mr. W. H. Bell, presided, supported by the following members of the General Committee:

The Hon. Mr. J. J. Paterson; Mr. P. S. Cassidy; Mr. V. M. Grayburn; Mr. M. T. Johnson; Mr. M. Paul Lauder; Mr. J. A. Plummer; Mr. J. P. Warren and the following co-opted members: The Hon. Mr. W. E. L. Shenton and Captain C. E. Mirehouse; and Mr. M. F. Key, (Secretary).

The following individual members and firms were represented:

for dinner." As he dashed off, Molly, who was sitting on the window sill and languidly fanning herself shot a triumphant glance at Ellen.

"Now admit it," she commanded gayly. "You were wrong about the bicycle."

"I suppose I was," Ellen conceded. "I've certainly never seen Mike look so well."

"The best of it is he's away from that street gang now," Molly continued happily. "He's well and busy and full of fun."

"Hush, here he comes," Myra interrupted.

"Don't you think, Ellen," Molly asked quickly, slipping in a last hasty question, "that you might be wrong about other things too?"

Ellen continued to pull up the chairs. She did not answer. They gathered about the porcelain table that looked out on the fire escape and Ellen's geraniums. They talked languidly, laughed occasionally and passed back and forth the bread and butter sandwiches while outside the hot twilight slid into hot, velvety night. Molly had shaken off her momentary pettishness. She was proud of both girls and of her young son.

"This isn't so bad," said Myra at last, yawning.

"Rather nice in fact," Ellen agreed, sipping the last dregs of the iced tea.

"Do you know, I think good luck has come to us at last," Myra continued, half jestingly. "The insurance is almost paid again. Ellen's about to give up that horrible job at Dreamland and she's had a grand boost at Barclay's. Fair weather ahead!"

"Certainly we'd had our share of bad luck," Molly sighed wistfully, sending a little prayer out into the night. "There can't be any more in store for us."

But this was.

At noon the next day, Myra riding his new bicycle, was run down by a truck.

SCHEME TO HELP THE EMPIRE.

London, May 5. A vast scheme for inter-imperial co-operation has been elaborated by the Empire Committee of the Federation of British Industries in preparation for Ottawa and is described as "Rationalisation of industry on an Empire Basis."

The report brings attention to the United States' efforts to make North and South America into a commercial whole, Japan forming a powerful bloc in the Far East, France building up a Colonial Empire, the Central European coalition on tugs and the fact that the Dominions are suffering as much as Britain from foreign penetration, which indicated the need of a far-reaching economic co-ordination. This could be accomplished by means of a scheme of "complementary production" and the closest co-operation of the British Dominions.

The industrialists aimed at the discouragement of uneconomic production by protection and "efficient" industries and otherwise fostered within the empire with duty against the foreigner.

Monetary System.

Further recommendations embrace Imperial transport, publicity propaganda, migration, education, films and monetary policy, in which connexion the committee points out that in the past 10 years there has been a default of interest and payments on $145,000,000 foreign loans.

SUBMARINES AND MINES.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION AT DISARMAMENT

Geneva, May 5. After a strenuous discussion on Britain's suggestion for the abolition of submarines as offensive weapons, the Naval Committee of the Disarmament Conference has come to no decision and the question of "mines" has been tackled. Britain favours the abolition of contact mines in the open sea, if submarines are also abolished.

The Italian delegate declared that if submarines were abolished, capital ships should also be abolished. The Polish delegate said that the submarine was only a defensive arm against superior naval strength but he was prepared to follow the example of the principal signatories of the London Naval Treaty in that connexion.

Senator Swanson, denouncing submarines, said the United States would establish a powerful submarine base in the Philippines if submarines were not completely abolished.—Reuter.

Issues in London, whereas "no Empire country has defaulted." The committee recommends the exploration of all methods of international action to solve financial problems, aiming at the creation of a financial monetary system revolving round sterling, firstly within the Empire to remove inter-Empire exchange difficulties, and secondly in conjunction with foreign countries for close trading relations with the Empire.—Reuter.

UNION INSURANCE SOCIETY

BOARD OF DIRECTORS' REPORT

The report of the Board of Directors of the Union Insurance Society of Canton, Ltd., states:

1930 Account:—After payment of the interim dividend of 24s. per share and the bonus of 20% to Contributors passed at the last Annual Meeting, there remains a Balance of £190,797 7s. 8d. as per annexed statement. The Board recommends that a final dividend of 16s. per share on 135,000 shares be paid to Shareholders, absorbing £105,000, that £500,000, which at exchange 1/5½ equals £35,937 10 0, be added to silver reserve fund, increasing that fund to £3,504,000, and that the balance be carried forward to underwriting suspense account to close the account for the year 1930.

1931 Account:—The Balance of Working Account on the 31st December, 1931, was £338,966 9s. 7d. as per annexed statement. The Board recommends that an interim dividend of 24s. per share be paid to Shareholders, absorbing £162,000, that a bonus of 20% be paid to Contributors, absorbing about £10,000, and that the remainder be carried forward.

Directors:—Since the last General Meeting, Mr. D. O. Russell and the Hon. Mr. C. G. S. Muckle resigned from the Board and Mr. T. A. Mitchell and Mr. L. J. Davies have joined the Board. In accordance with the Articles of Association, Mr. J. A. Plummer and Mr. J. P. Warren retire, but offer themselves for re-election.

Auditors:—Messrs. Lowe, Bingham, & Matthews and Messrs. Linstead & Davis, Chartered Accountants, retire, but offer themselves for re-election.

COLONY'S ACTING GOVERNOR

MR. SOUTHERN SWORN IN TO-DAY

After His Excellency Sir William Peel had left the Colony, the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, C.M.G., Colonial Secretary, was sworn in by the Acting Chief Justice (Mr. Justice Wood) as Officer Administering the Government.

The ceremony was held in the Legislative Council Chamber, in the presence of members of the Legislative and Executive Councils and a number of ladies.

At the conclusion of the brief ceremony a salute of 15 guns was fired from Gun Club Hill and those present offered their congratulations to the Acting Governor.

RACKETEER RIDES IN STATE

SPECIAL COACH TO GO TO PRISON

New York, Apr. 8. Jack Guzik, the reputed business manager for Capone's liquor vice syndicate, has entered Leavenworth Prison to begin a five-year sentence for tax frauds; but even this enforced surrender was given with an air of condescension by the racketeer, who hired a special railway coach wherein to make the trip to prison.

Guzik was to travel from Chicago to-day in company with narcotic pedlars, thieves, and liquor law violators, but to avoid association with these other prisoners, Guzik hired a private coach and paid the expenses of two government agents to guard him.

Members of the train staff said that Guzik was most liberal with money on the trip from Chicago, although he seemed somewhat crestfallen when before the train started he was served with liens for $32,000 dollars (£165,400 at par) unpaid taxes which the Government claims in addition to a fine of 17,500 dollars imposed as part of the sentence.

Although the heads of the Capone Syndicate are behind bars evidence that the organisation is still functioning is seen by Apple in the murder of Benjamin Epstein and his brother Ernest last night in their small Chicago apartment. They were instantly killed by shotgun slugs fired at close range.

TURKISH BACHELORS TO BE TAXED?

PROPOSAL EXAMINED.

Constantinople, Mar. 30. A Bill proposing a special tax on bachelors was recently referred to a committee for examination. If it is endorsed by the Popular Party, its acceptance by the Great National Assembly is then only a pure formality.

Whereas, according to its promoter, the Bill aims at favouring marriage and furthering repopulation, public opinion as a whole is inclined to consider a tax on bachelors as purely a fiscal measure intended to secure a new source of revenue.

Critics of the Bill have pointed out, that in this country, if a young man does not marry, his abstention is mostly due to the fact that he has an old mother, unmarried sisters, or young brothers to look after. There are also divorced men and widowers, who already have children, and for the sustenance of whom they have to work.

Above all it is argued that a

BRITISH BID FOR RECORD

Lord Wakefield's speed boat Miss England III, with which Mr. Kaye Don will attack the world's motor boat speed record now held by America, has two Rolls-Royce engines of the Schneider Trophy type. With ordinary fuel their horse power is 2,350 each; but with special fuel the horse power can be raised to nearly 2,600 each. Mr. Kaye Don's previous world's record, with Miss England II, was made at Lake Garda last June when his speed was just over 110 miles an hour. Mr. Gar Wood's speed is 111.71 m.p.h. and constitutes the present official world's record.

Delivery of Miss England III, which is being built by Messrs. Thornycroft at Hampton, is expected to take place in May. She will then be despatched to Lake Garda to race for the D'Annunzio Trophy and to make her attempt on the world's speed record.

FREE CHURCHES AND HOLY COMMUNION

OXFORD CONFERENCE RESOLUTION.

A resolution expressing recognition of the great need for reunion between the Church of England and the Free Churches was carried at the Conference of Evangelical Churchmen.

The Conference welcomed the Bishops' proposals for the "cordial reception," on occasion, of Free Churchmen at Holy Communion.

Canon Guy Rogers, Rector of Birmingham, proposing the resolution, declared that all that was involved was "the regularising of custom and practice with which the Church generally has grown very familiar in recent years."

Th opposition was partly due to "the survival in certain quarters of habits of mind and ways of thinking more appropriate to the Sixteenth Century than to the Twentieth."

It was evident, he added, that so long as the Anglo-Catholics quoted the Canon of 1604, which provided for ex-communication for those who formed themselves in a new brotherhood, "any encouragement to Nonconformists to come with us to Holy Communion must be sternly resisted."

man who is already miserable cannot be compelled to make another being miserable, too, and to reserve the same lot to innocent children.
